Pursuant to Rule 5.43 of the Rules of Procedure of the State Bar of California, respondent John Charles Eastman ("Respondent") answers the allegations of the Notice of Disciplinary Charges, dated January 26, 2023 ("NDC"), as follows:

JURISDICTION

1. John Charles Eastman ("respondent") was admitted to the practice of law in the State of California on December 15, 1997. Respondent was a licensed attorney at all times pertinent to these charges and is currently a licensed attorney of the State Bar of California.

INTRODUCTION

2. In or about December 2020, respondent began working with President Donald Trump ("Trump") and his campaign to develop a legal and political strategy to dispute the results of the November 3, 2020 election, in which President Trump had lost his bid for reelection, by promoting the idea that the election was tainted by fraud, disregard of state election law, and misconduct by election officials.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 2 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that he "began working with President Donald Trump ("Trump") and his campaign" "in or about December 2020." Respondent was engaged by and began working with an Election Integrity effort requested of client President Trump in early September 2020, and with the Trump campaign legal team in early November 2020. Respondent DENIES that he was retained to assist "in disputing the results of the ... 2020 election" but to provide legal advice, among legal advisers and others engaged by President Trump and his campaign, to assess legal options available to both arising out of the 2020 Presidential election results. Respondent ADMITS that Joseph R. Biden, Jr., was sworn in as President and took office on January 20, 2021, but whether President Trump had lost his bid for reelection was and remains hotly disputed, and depends on whether the significant evidence of illegality and fraud outlined in Respondent's response to the bar investigators (attached hereto as Exhibit A) and elsewhere affected the results of the election. Respondent ADMITS that during the course of his engagement as legal advisor to Trump and his campaign he identified and evaluated examples of violations of state election law and misconduct by state election officials, contrary to the Constitution's assignment of plenary power to the state legislatures to direct the manner of choosing presidential electors. Respondent ADMITS that there was compelling, substantial, reliable, and credible evidence that the election had been tainted by fraud, violations of state election law, and misconduct by state election officials.

3. In the months following the election, however, the Trump campaign received information from numerous credible sources, including Attorney General of the United States William Barr and members of Trump's inner circle of advisors, that there was no evidence of widespread election fraud or illegality that could have affected the outcome of the election. On or about December 1, 2020, Attorney General Barr, who headed the United States Department of Justice, which had monitored state elections for fraud and illegality, publicly stated that "to date, we have not seen fraud on a scale that could have effected a different outcome in the election."

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 3 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES for lack of personal knowledge whether the "Trump campaign received information from numerous credible sources ... that there was no evidence of widespread election fraud or illegality." During the course of his engagement, Respondent was made aware of the opposite. Respondent ADMITS, based on news accounts, that Attorney General Barr publicly stated that "to date, we have not seen fraud on a scale that could have effected (sic) a different outcome in the election." Respondent DENIES that the statement was credible, given the large amount of contradictory evidence from credible sources, such as: Georgia State Senator William Ligon¹ and Pennsylvania Representative Francis Ryan² identifying ¹ Hon. Wm. Ligon, The Chairman's Report of the Election Law Study Subcommittee of the Standing [Georgia] Senate Judiciary Committee, at 12 (Dec. 17, 2020) ("ample evidence that the 2020 Georgia General Election was so compromised by systemic irregularities and voter fraud that it should not be certified."), at http://www.senatorligon.com/THE_FINAL%20REPORT.PDF.

² Letter to Rep. Scott Perry, cc: to all members of Congress, of December 4, 2020 (signed by 15 members of the Pennsylvania Legislature) ("The general election of 2020 in Pennsylvania was fraught with inconsistencies, documented irregularities and improprieties associated with numerous instances of illegality and fraud in the conduct of the elections in Georgia and Pennsylvania elections, much greater than the margins in those states; the sworn testimony of Heidi Stirrup asserting that AG Barr admitted that the Department of Justice did not investigate allegations of fraud and illegality; the written statement of former U.S. Attorney William McSwain asserting that AG Barr had privately instructed him not to investigate allegations of election illegality and fraud; and the volume of evidence, including sworn eyewitness affidavits and expert analysis, submitted in conjunction with the Trump v. Raffensperger lawsuit in Georgia. Respondent DENIES for lack of personal knowledge that the Department of Justice "had monitored state elections for fraud and illegality. Respondent DENIES that AG Barr had claimed that there was no evidence of "illegality," as his statement refers only to "fraud." Respondent DENIES that whatever sources had claimed there was no evidence of widespread election fraud or illegality were credible, given the extensive evidence of illegality and/or fraud known at the time – and much of which has subsequently been confirmed.

4. Moreover, by early January 2021, more than 60 courts had dismissed cases alleging fraud in the presidential election. Many of the cases were dismissed based on lack of standing or procedural issues. But approximately 30 of the cases were dismissed or had injunctive relief denied based on determinations by a judge that the pleadings failed to allege facts sufficient to state a claim or that no actual evidence of election fraud had been presented, or after an evidentiary hearing and a finding that the evidence presented by the plaintiffs was insufficient on the merits. For example, on or about November 6, 2020, in Michigan, a court denied a request for injunctive relief, concluding that the plaintiffs' motion was "based upon speculation and conjecture" and that there was "no evidence to support accusations of voter fraud." (Stoddard v. City Election Comm'n, mail-in balloting, pre-canvassing, and canvassing that the reliability of the mail-in votes in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is impossible to rely upon."); ("the mail-in ballot process in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the 2020 General Election was so defective that it is essential to declare the selection of presidential electors for the Commonwealth to be in dispute.");

No. 20-014604-CZ, slip op. at 3, 4 (Mich. Cir. Ct. Nov. 6, 2020).). On or about November 21, 2020, in Pennsylvania, a court granted a motion to dismiss some claims based on lack of standing but others for failure to state a claim, concluding that the allegations of election fraud rested on "strained legal arguments without merit and speculative accusations, unpled in the operative complaint and unsupported by evidence." (Donald J. Trump for President, Inc. v. Boockvar, 502 F. Supp. 3d 899, 906 (M.D. Pa.), aff'd sub nom. Donald J. Trump for President, Inc. v. Secretary of Pennsylvania (3d Cir. 2020) 830 Fed.Appx. 377.) On or about December 8, 2020, in Arizona, the state's Supreme Court concluded that the trial court was correct in its determination, after an evidentiary trial, that the plaintiff had failed "to present any evidence of 'misconduct,' 'illegal votes' or that the Biden Electors 'did not in fact receive the highest number of votes for office,' let alone establish any degree of fraud or a sufficient error rate that would undermine the certainty of the election results." (Ward v. Jackson, No. CV-20-0343-AP/EL, 2020 WL 8617817, at *2 (Ariz. Dec. 8, 2020).)

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 4 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. The allegations are also vague. For example, although Trial Counsel asserts that "more than 60 courts had dismissed cases alleging fraud in the presidential election" and that "approximately 30 of the cases were dismissed or had injunctive relief denied," Trial Counsel only cites to three cases. Whether considered alone or together, those three cases do not foreclose assessments (backed by credible and reliable evidence) made, and arguments crafted, by Respondent as part of his engagement by his clients. Further, Trial Counsel omits citation or even reference to state supreme court cases, opinions filed in cases by Justices of the United States Supreme Court, and cases granted review by the United States Supreme Court that demonstrate that the legal assessments and advice advanced by Respondent on behalf of his client were viable, tenable, advanced in good faith, and in many cases had substantial merit.

Using the standard set for sanctions under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 11, a legal argument is not frivolous so long as a competent attorney can make plausible, good faith argument. Riverhead Sav. Bank v. Nat'l Mortg. Equity Corp., 893 F.2d 1109, 1115 (9th Cir. 1990). This is true even when the legal argument is contrary to a state court ruling. Id. The argument need not even be supported by controlling case law. Hawaiian Crow ('Alala) v. Lujan, 906 F. Supp. 549, 552 (D. Haw. 1991) (Denying sanctions for naming a bird as a plaintiff in a "citizen's suit."). Only a ruling by an appellate court in the same jurisdiction as the litigation that is directly on point can foreclose a legal argument. Milwaukee Concrete Studios, Ltd. v. Fjeld Mfg. Co., 8 F.3d 441, 449; Neighborhood Rsch. Inst. v. Campus Partners for Cmty Urb. Dev., 212 FRD 374, 379 (S.D. Ohio 2002). Even if there is a case on point, a party has the right to seek reconsideration of that prior decision. See Szabo Food Serv., Inc. v. Canteen Corp., 823 F.2d 1073, 1081 (7th Cir. 1987). Similarly, in California, a claim is unsupported by probable cause only if any reasonable attorney would agree that it is totally and completely without merit. Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal.3d 863, 874.

None of the three cases cited by Trial Counsel forecloses the arguments made by Respondent on behalf of his client. Stoddard v. City Election Comm'n was not a decision on the merits. Instead, it was denial of a motion for preliminary injunction. Stoddard v. City Election Commission, No. 20-01-014604-CZ, Opinion and Order at 1 (Michigan Circuit Court 2020). Rulings on motions for preliminary injunctions are not rulings on the merits under Michigan law. Cf. Detroit Fire Fighters Ass'n v. City of Detroit, 753 NW2d 579, 588 (Mich. Supreme Court 2008) ("if a trial court ... chooses to issue a [preliminary] injunction, it must promptly decide the merits"). The ruling on the preliminary injunction is limited to whether the party seeking the injunction has demonstrated, and that early stage of the case, a likelihood of success and whether they have established the likelihood of irreparable harm. Id. at 587. In Stoddard, the court ruled that the plaintiff failed to produce evidence at that early stage establishing a likelihood of success and in any event that plaintiff could not show irreparable harm since Michigan law provided other remedies. Stoddard, Opinion and Order at 2-3. The decision was limited to the allegations regarding counting of absentee ballots in Wayne County. Id. at 4.

The Arizona decision in Ward v. Jackson also does not support the Trial Counsel's allegation. As the Arizona Supreme Court noted, there was only a difference of 10,457 votes out of a total of more than 3.3 million votes case for the electors of the two presidential candidates. Ward v. Jackson, 2020 WL 8617817 at *1 (2020). The case focused on 27,869 "duplicate ballots" from Maricopa County. Id. These ballots are created when the ballot cast is damaged so that it cannot be tabulated by machine. Id. This "damage" includes "overvotes" which are "votes for more than one candidate." Id. The court noted that there was "credible testimony" from a "number of witnesses" that there were errors in the duplicate ballots that "did not accurately reflect the voter's apparent intent." Id. Yet of the more than 27,000 duplicate ballots at issue, only 1,626 ballots were allowed to be reviewed. The court did not permit additional time or opportunity to review more of the challenged ballots because the plaintiff could not prove that the review would result in a change in the vote count. Id. at *2. The Arizona Supreme Court only ruled that the "trial judge did not abuse his discretion in denying the request ... to permit additional inspection of the ballots." Id. This is not a ruling on the merits that forecloses good faith arguments disputing the results.

Trial Counsel's reliance on Donald J. Trump for President, Inc. v. Boockvar, 5502 F.Supp.3d 889 (MD Penn. 2020) is of particular concern because Trial Counsel fails to cite to opinions of Supreme Court Justices that demonstrate that the arguments put forward by Respondent on behalf of his client were meritorious or at least tenable. Boockvar was one of a number of cases that questioned the authority of state and local election authorities to invite individuals to "cure" otherwise invalid ballots. Id. at 907. The District Court noted that this procedure was not authorized by the Pennsylvania Election Code. Id. The court further noted that the Pennsylvania Supreme Court "declined to explicitly answer" whether this statutorily unauthorized practice was forbidden. Id. Thus, the issue in Pennsylvania is whether the executive has the authority to make rules governing a federal election that are contrary to the rules established by the legislature pursuant to its plenary power under Article II of the Constitution to direct the manner of choosing presidential electors. This issue was brought into sharp focus when the Pennsylvania Supreme Court issued a ruling that altered the unambiguous deadline for receipt of absentee ballots set forth by the Legislature. Justice Alito, writing for himself and Justices Thomas and Gorsuch, noted that the Federal Constitution confers authority for regulating federal elections on state legislatures. Republican Party of Pennsylvania v. Boockvar, 141 S.Ct. 1(2020) (Statement of Alito, J. on Motion to Expedite Consideration of the Petition for Writ of Certiorari). The issue of whether courts or executive branch officials can add to or alter the procedures dictated by the state legislature is an important issue that "calls out for review" by the Supreme Court, Justice Alito wrote. Id. That issue is now before the Supreme Court in Moore v. Harper, No. 21-1271, which was argued in December 2022. The Court is specifically considering whether, consistent with Article I, §4, cl.1 of the United States Constitution (which, like its counterpart in Article II regarding presidential electors, assigns to the state legislatures the power to direct the manner for conducting federal elections), a state court can alter the regulations for the manner of holding a federal election prescribed by the state legislature. This is the issue raised by Respondent on behalf of his client that Trial Counsel asserts is violative of the California Rules of Professional Conduct. Yet, the opinions of the Justices of the United States Supreme Court and the decision of that Court to grant review of the issue demonstrate that the arguments pressed by Respondent are meritorious or at least tenable. Indeed, Respondent's arguments have carried the day in Wisconsin where the Supreme Court has ruled that the Wisconsin Elections Commission had no legal authority to establish unstaffed ballot drop boxes that were used during the 2020 presidential election. Teigen v. Wisconsin Elections Commission, 976 N.W.2d 519, 525 (Wis. 2022). Hundreds of these boxes were set up and "thousands of votes have been cast via this unlawful method ... directly harming Wisconsin voters." Id. at ¶ 24 (Opinion of Bradley, J., joined by Ziegler, C.J. and Roggensack, J.). As the justices noted, all lawful voters are harmed when the commission does not follow the law and leaves "the results in question." Id. The action by the commission bypassed the security concerns of the legislature, leaving the election open to the "potential for fraud and abuse." Id. at ¶ 71. In addition to unstaffed drop boxes, the election commission also allowed individuals other than the voter (i.e., ballot harvesters) to deposit the ballot into the drop box. Id. at ¶ 73. All of this violated the legislature's carefully crafted procedures that were designed to avoid fraud and abuse.

The decision in Teigen conflicts with the earlier decision in Trump v. Biden, 951 N.W.2d 568 (Wis. 2020), where the Wisconsin Supreme Court had permitted the actions of the election commission that had no warrant in Wisconsin statutory law. Teigen, at 677 (¶ 117) (Bradley, J., concurring). The concurring justices in Teigen noted that ballots cast in contravention of the procedures set down by the legislature cannot be counted and if they are counted then that count cannot be included in the certified results of the election. Id. at ¶134 (Bradley, J., concurring). But the Teigen court acknowledged that ballots were cast in violation to the procedures set forth by the legislature, those ballots were counted, and that count was included in the certified results. This decision supports the arguments that Respondent was making on behalf of his client. Trial Counsel, however, failed to advise this court of "legal authority in the controlling jurisdiction known to the [Trial Counsel] to be directly adverse" to its position and contentions in paragraph 4. Cal. Rule of Prof. Conduct 3.3 (a)(2).

5. As a result of information received from credible sources and numerous court rulings, by no later than on or about December 9, 2020, respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that there was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely of election fraud or illegality that could have affected the outcome of the election, and that there was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely that the election had been "stolen" by the Democratic Party or other parties acting in a coordinated conspiracy to fraudulently "steal" the election from Trump.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 5 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, imprecise, overbroad, vague and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES the allegations in Paragraph 5 of the NDC. The statement that there was "no evidence ... of election fraud or illegality that could have affected the outcome of the election" is false. Indeed, elected officials in several states had expressly advised that, due to violations of state law and serious allegations of fraud, the elections were "in dispute" and the certified results could not be relied upon. See, e.g., Pennsylvania H. Res. 1094 (Nov. 30, 2020)³; Hon. Wm. Ligon, The Chairman's Report of the Election Law Study Subcommittee of the Standing [Georgia] Senate Judiciary Committee, at 12 (Dec. 17, 2020) ("ample evidence that the 2020 Georgia General Election was so compromised by systemic irregularities and voter fraud that it should not be certified.").⁴ It is noteworthy that, in the investigate process, Respondent provided to the bar investigators extensive evidence from numerous credible sources demonstrating or strongly suggesting that the outcome of the election may well have been affected by illegality and/or fraud, rendering the assertions by Trial Counsel in the NDC that much more unsubstantiated.⁵ The statement that there was "no evidence ... that the election had been 'stolen' by Democratic Party or other parties acting in a coordinated conspiracy to fraudulently 'steal' the election from Trump" is also false. As for whether the illegality and fraud resulted from a strategic Democrat plan to systematically flout existing election laws, there was significant evidence of that claim at the time, including evidence in Pennsylvania of election officials providing advance notice of defective mail-in ballots to Democrat operatives in violation of 25 P.S. § 3146.8, which prohibits "pre-canvassing" of ballots before 7:00 a.m. on election day; an apparently collusive suit between a Democrat-leaning NGO and the Democrat Secretary of State in Pennsylvania to eliminate signature verification, League of Women Voters of Pennsylvania v. Boockvar, No. 2:20-cv-03850 (E.D. Pa., filed Aug. 7, 2020); coordination between the Biden campaign and Democrat county election officials of an illegal "human drop box" ballot harvesting effort in Wisconsin dubbed "Democracy in the Park," see Trump v. Biden, 951 N.W.2d 568, 590 (Dec. 14, 2020) (Roggensack, J., dissenting, $\frac{6}{2}$ joined by) (noting that "the 17,271 ballots that were collected in Madison parks did not comply with the statutes"); M. D. Kittle, Is Biden sponsoring Madison city voter event?, Empower Wisconsin (Sept. 25, 2020).⁷ These and other efforts were subsequently described in an important, eye-opening Time Magazine article by Molly Ball as a "conspiracy" by leftist groups and anti-Trump Republicans. Headed by Mike Podhorzer, long-time Democrat activist and senior advisor to the President of the AFL-CIO, one of the Democrat parties strongest allies, Ball described the "conspiracy" as "a well-funded cabal of powerful people, ranging across industries and ideologies, working together behind the scenes to influence perceptions, change rules and laws, steer media coverage and control the flow of information," not to "rig" the election, they claimed, but to "fortify" it against Trump and his supposed "assault on democracy." Molly Ball, The Secret History of the Shadow Campaign that Saved the 2020 Election, Time (Feb. 4, 2021).

Nevertheless, from on or about December 9, 2020, and continuing to at least on or about January 6, 2021, respondent continued to work with Trump and others to promote the idea that the outcome of the election was in question and had been stolen from Trump as the result of fraud, disregard of state election law, and misconduct by election officials. In doing so, respondent violated his obligations as an attorney in two ways. First, he provided legal advice, formulated legal strategies, and engaged in litigation based on, and made public statements propounding, allegations of election fraud that he knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, were false. Second, based on misinterpretations of historical sources, misinterpretations of law review articles, and law review articles that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing were themselves fundamentally flawed, he provided, and proposed actions based on, legal advice regarding the unilateral authority of the Vice President to disregard or delay the counting of electoral votes that he knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, was contrary to and unsupported by the historical record and established legal authority and precedent, including the Electoral Count Act and the Twelfth Amendment, such that no reasonable attorney with expertise in constitutional or election law would have concluded that the Vice President was legally authorized to take the actions respondent proposed.

of electoral votes," but even if he had provided such advice, he DENIES that the contention that the Vice President alone, pursuant to the language of the Twelfth Amendment and its predecessor language in Article II, has the power to make judgments about whether contested electoral votes should be opened and counted, "was contrary to and unsupported by the historical record and established legal authority and precedent, including the Electoral Count Act and the Twelfth Amendment." He further DENIES "that no reasonable attorney with expertise in constitutional or election law would have concluded that the Vice President was legally authorized to take the actions respondent proposed." Numerous prominent constitutional scholars have either contended that the Constitution provides such authority to the Vice President or acknowledged the plausibility of the argument. See, e.g., John Yoo and Robert Delahunty, What Happens if No One Wins?, American Mind (Oct. 19, 2020) ("Though the 12th Amendment describes the counting in the passive voice, the language seems to envisage a single, continuous process in which the Vice President both opens and counts the votes. ... And if 'counting' the electors' votes is the Vice President's responsibility, then the inextricably intertwined responsibility for judging the validity of those votes must also be his. ... [W]e think the better reading is that Vice President Pence would decide between competing slates of electors chosen by state legislators and governors, or decide whether to count votes that remain in litigation.")8; Bruce Ackerman and David Fontana, Thomas Jefferson Counts Himself Into the Presidency, 90 Va. J. 309, 322, 325 (2019) (noting "that at least some recent law journal scholarship has supported this position" and that the Twelfth Amendment's textual ambiguity "opens up the possibility of interpreting it to provide that the 'President of the Senate' has the exclusive constitutional authority to determine which 'certificates' to 'open' and thus which electoral votes 'to be counted."")¹¹; Nathan L. COUNT ONE

Case No. 21-O-11801
Business and Professions Code section 6068(a)
[Failure to Support the Constitution and Laws of the United States]

7. Beginning no later than on or about December 23, 2020 and continuing to at least on or about January 6, 2021, respondent violated his obligation under Business and Profession Code section 6068(a) to uphold the Constitution and the laws of the United States by engaging in a course of conduct that included the acts set out in paragraphs 8 through 30 below to plan, promote, execute, and assist Trump in executing a strategy for Trump to overturn the legitimate results of the election by obstructing the count of electoral votes of certain states, which strategy respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, was not supported by either the facts or law.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 7 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that he sought to "overturn the legitimate results of the election" because whether the election results were "legitimate" was and remains hotly contested, based as they were on acknowledged illegality and serious allegations of fraud in the conduct of the election. Respondent DENIES that his legal analysis and factual allegations were not supported by the facts or the law, and even if they were not, DENIES that he made such analysis and factual assertions knowing them to be false or grossly negligent in not knowing them to be false.

8. On or about December 23, 2020, respondent wrote and sent to an attorney and strategic advisor to Trump's 2020 presidential campaign, with the intent of providing legal advice to Trump and Vice-President Michael Pence ("Pence"), a two-page legal memorandum (the "two-page memo") that, based on what the memo asserted to be Pence's legal authority to take unilateral action with respect to the electoral votes of certain states at the Joint Session of Congress to count electoral votes on January 6, 2021, outlined alternative strategies for action based on Pence refusing to count the electoral votes from seven states that had voted for candidate Joe Biden ("Biden"). Those seven states were Arizona, Georgia, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Nevada, New Mexico, and Wisconsin.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 8 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that he prepared the 2-page memo with the "intent of providing legal advice to Trump and Vice-President Michael Pence." As he has noted to the Bar investigators and elsewhere, the 2-page memo was but a preliminary draft of a portion of larger memo outlining all the various scenarios that were being discussed in public discourse. Respondent ADMITS that Biden had been declared the winner in the seven listed states, but DENIES that those declarations were conclusive, as litigation was still pending at the time in several of the contested states.

9. With respect to these seven states, respondent proposed that Pence "announce [] that he has multiple slates of electors, and so is going to defer decision on that until finishing the other States." Respondent then proposed two alternative courses of action. Under the first, Pence would "announce [] that because of the ongoing disputes in the 7 States, there are no electors that can be deemed validly appointed in those States." Without electors appointed for those states, Trump's 228 electoral votes would constitute a majority of the 454 appointed electors. Respondent advised "Pence [to] then gavel [] President Trump as re-elected." Under the second course of action, after "[h]owls, of course, from the Democrats," Pence would concede that 270 electoral votes were required for a majority. Under the Twelfth Amendment, when no candidate receives a majority of votes cast by the appointed electors, the House of Representatives chooses the President voting by state delegation. Because Republicans controlled 26 state delegations, respondent advised that "President Trump is re-elected there as well."

10. Respondent advised Pence to take these actions based on the two-page memo's assertion that the "7 states have transmitted dual slates of electors to the President of the Senate." Respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that this assertion was false and misleading, in that, as respondent knew at the time: (a) pursuant to 3 U.S.C. § 6, the governor of each of those states had submitted a certificate of ascertainment indicting that the Biden electors, not the Trump electors, had been appointed because the Biden electors received more votes in those state's election; (b) no other state official of any of those states had submitted a purported certificate of ascertainment naming Trump electors; and (c) as a result, no legal authority on behalf of any state had taken any action to support the contention that Trump electors were the legitimate electors for any of the seven states. Indeed, subsequently, on or about January 10, 2021, respondent acknowledged in an email that the purported Trump electors from these seven states, who had met on December 14, cast their electoral votes, and themselves transmitted those votes to the Vice President, "had no authority" because "[n]o legislature [had] certified them."

intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that he "advised Pence to take these actions." Respondent DENIES that the claim in the memo regarding dual slates of electors from 7 states was false and misleading, or that Respondent knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing it to be false and misleading. The statement was in fact true, just as there were "dual slates of electors" from Hawaii in 1960 – the Vice President Nixon electors who had been certified as victors, and the Senator Kennedy electors, both sets of which met on the designated day in December 1960, cast their electoral votes, and transmitted those votes to the President of the Senate. Respondent ADMITS that the Biden electors had been certified by the respective Governors, just as the Nixon electors had been certified by Hawaii's Governor in 1960. Respondent ADMITS that Biden electors had received more reported votes, but DENIES that the results accurately recorded lawful (as opposed to unlawful) votes, a factual controversy that was at the time (and remains) very much in dispute. Indeed, elected officials in several states had expressly advised that, due to violations of state law and serious allegations of fraud, the elections were "in dispute" and the certified results could not be relied upon. See, e.g., Pennsylvania H. Res. 1094 (Nov. 30, 2020)¹³; Hon. Wm. Ligon, The Chairman's Report of the Election Law Study Subcommittee of the Standing [Georgia] Senate Judiciary Committee, at 12 (Dec. 17, 2020) ("ample evidence that the 2020 Georgia General Election was so compromised by systemic irregularities and voter fraud that it should not be certified."). 14 Respondent ADMITS that, at the time the memo was drafted, no other state authority had certified the Trump electors, just as no other state authority had certified the Kennedy electors at the time those electors met in December and cast their electoral votes. Respondent ADMITS that absent subsequent certification, whether by a Governor after a successful election challenge (as happened in Hawaii in

11. On or about January 2, 2021, respondent appeared on the "Bannon's War Room" radio program, during which he was interviewed by program host Steve Bannon. According to Bannon, the radio program had tens of millions of listeners. Respondent stated that there was "massive evidence" of fraud involving absentee ballots in the November 3, 2020, presidential election, "most egregiously in Georgia and Pennsylvania and Wisconsin." Respondent further stated that there had been "more than enough" absentee ballot fraud "to have affected the outcome of the election." Respondent made these statements with the intent to encourage the audience listening to the radio program and the general public to question the legitimacy of the election results. Respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that these allegations regarding absentee ballot fraud were false and misleading, as respondent knew at the time that there was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely of absentee ballot fraud in any state in sufficient numbers that could have affected the outcome of the election. In fact, respondent was informed by numerous credible sources, including the Attorney General of the United States, that there was no evidence of widespread election fraud or illegality that could have affected the statements was to expose such illegality and fraud, as was his constitutional right under the First Amendment. Respondent DENIES that his statements were false or misleading, or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing that they were false or misleading. Respondent DENIES that he was ever directly informed by the Attorney General of the United States or any other credible source that there was no evidence of widespread election fraud or illegality. Respondent ADMITS that Attorney General Barr made a public statement to that affect regarding fraud, but DENIES that the statement referenced illegality. Respondent further DENIES that Attorney General Barr's statement was credible, given the large amount of contradictory evidence from credible sources, such as: Georgia State Senator William Ligon andPennsylvania Representative Francis Ryan, identifying numerous instances of illegality and fraud in the conduct of the elections in Georgia, Pennsylvania, and elsewhere much greater than the margins in those states; and the volume of evidence, including sworn eyewitness affidavits and expert analysis, submitted in conjunction with the Trump v. Raffensperger lawsuit in Georgia.

12. On or about January 3, 2021, respondent wrote and sent to an attorney and strategic advisor to Trump's 2020 presidential campaign, with the intent of providing legal advice to Trump and Pence, a six-page legal memorandum (the "six-page memo") that, based on what the memo asserted to be Pence's legal authority to take unilateral action with respect to the electoral votes of certain states on January 6, 2021, elaborated on the legal theory and strategies for action by Pence initially presented in the two-page memo. The six-page memo advised that Pence had legal authority to take various actions, including "determin[ing] on his own which [slate of electors] is valid" or "adjourn[ing] the joint session of Congress." The advice in the six-page memo was again based on the assertion that there were "7 states with multiple ballots." Respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that this assertion was false and misleading, in that, as respondent knew at the time: (a) pursuant to 3 U.S.C. § 6, the governor of each of those states had submitted a certificate of ascertainment indicting that the Biden electors, not the Trump electors, had been appointed because the Biden electors received more votes in the election; (b) no other state official of any of those states had submitted a purported certificate of ascertainment naming Trump electors; and (c) as a result, no legal authority on behalf of any state had taken any action to support the contention that Trump electors were the legitimate electors for any of the seven states. Indeed, subsequently, on or about January 10, 2021, respondent acknowledged in an email that the purported the Trump electors from these seven states, who had met on December 14, cast their electoral votes, and themselves transmitted those votes to the Vice President, "had no authority" because "[n]o legislature [had] certified them."

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 12 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent ADMITS that he sent a six-page memo to an attorney/strategic advisor outlining numerous scenarios for the counting of electoral votes during the joint session of Congress on January Respondent DENIES that the memo advised the adoption of any particular scenario. Respondent DENIES that the claim in the memo regarding dual slates of electors from 7 states was false and misleading, or that Respondent knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing it to be false and misleading. The statement was in fact true, just as there were "dual slates of electors" from Hawaii in 1960 – the Vice President Nixon electors who had been certified as victors, and the Senator Kennedy electors, both sets of which met on the designated day in December 1960, cast their electoral votes, and transmitted those votes to the President of the Senate. Hawaii in early 1961), or by a court, or by the Legislature, the alternate electors would have no authority, but at the time the memo was written, efforts with respect to each of those scenarios were still pending.

13. The six-page memo asserted that the election was tainted by "outright fraud (both traditional ballot stuffing and electronic manipulation of voting tabulation machines)." Respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that this assertion was false and misleading because there was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely of "outright fraud," including either "traditional ballot stuffing" or "electronic manipulation of the voting tabulation machines," in any state involving enough votes to affect the outcome of the election.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 13 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent ADMITS that the memo asserts, as an aside, that the election was tainted by "outright fraud (both traditional ballot stuffing and electronic manipulation of voting tabulation machines," as asserted in paragraph 13 of the NDC. Respondent DENIES that the memo asserts that there was "outright fraud" in any state involving enough votes to affect the outcome of the election, as the memo mentions "fraud" only as an aside, focusing instead on the documented evidence of illegality in the conduct of the election. Even with respect to "illegality," or "illegality" in combination with "fraud," Respondent DENIES that the memo makes any assertion about whether enough votes to affect the outcome of the election were involved. Rather, the memo expressly reserves that issue for further investigation. See Memo ¶ III.c.ii ("based on all the evidence and the letters from state legislators calling into question the executive certifications, decides to count neither slate of electors"); id. ¶ III.d.i ("If, after investigation, proven fraud and illegality is insufficient to alter the results of the election, the original slate of electors would remain valid. BIDEN WINS." (emphasis in original)). Respondent DENIES that the assertions of fraud were false or misleading, or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing that they were false or misleading. The evidence of "fraud" was hotly contested at the time and remains so. Indeed, criminal convictions of "outright fraud" in a ballot harvesting scheme have already been obtained in Pima County, Arizona. Expert analysis identified statistical anomalies that "reek of a [machine] algorithm" that altered results. As for whether these hotly disputed factual claims involved enough votes to affect the outcome of the election, expert analysis in the then-stillpending Georgia litigation (Trump v. Raffensperger, No. 2020CV343255 (Fulton Cnty., Ga. Super. Ct., filed Dec. 4, 2020), dismissed as moot (Jan. 7, 2021)) had identified nearly 80,000 votes that, according to the state's own records, appeared to have been cast and counted in violation of Georgia law, well more than the 11,779-vote margin. Similar evidence of illegality and/or fraud affecting more votes than the margin, supported by sworn affidavits and expert analysis, was still being litigated at the time in Wisconsin and Pennsylvania. See, e.g., Trump v. Biden, 951 N.W.2d 568 (Wis. 2020), cert. petition filed, No. 20-882 (S.Ct. Dec. 29, 2020), cert. denied (Feb. 22, 2021); Pa. Democratic Party v. Boockvar, No. 133 MM 2020, 2020 WL 5554644 (Sept. 17, 2020), cert. petition filed sub. nom, Republican Party of Pennsylvania v. Boockvar, No. 20-542 (S.Ct., Oct. 23, 2020), cert. denied (Feb. 22, 2021).

14. The six-page memo presented alternative scenarios for action under the heading "War Gaming the Alternatives." Those scenarios included several in which Pence, as the "ultimate arbiter," either unilaterally counted no electors for each of the seven states that had purportedly submitted "dual slates of electors," unilaterally sent the election to the House of Representatives under the procedures established by the Twelfth Amendment, or unilaterally adjourned the Joint Session without counting the electoral votes in the hope that Republican legislatures in the seven states would later appoint or certify a slate of Trump electors.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 14 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that the memo asserts "the hope that Republican legislatures in the seven states later appoint or certify a slate of Trump electors," as claimed in Paragraph 14 of the NDC. The "adjourn" scenario discussed in the memo is expressly grounded on the fact that "election challenges" were still "ongoing" and that state legislatures would, as more than a hundred state legislators had requested, then have the time to "order a comprehensive audit/investigation of the election returns in the states, and then determine whether the slate of electors initially certified is valid, or whether the alternative slate of electors should be certified." Memo ¶ III.d. Moreover, the memo then expressly set out two potential paths based on the results of that investigation, without expressing a preference or "hope" for either one of them. First, "If, after investigation, proven fraud and illegality is insufficient to alter the results of the election, the original slate of electors would remain valid. BIDEN WINS." Memo ¶ III.d.i (emphasis in original). Second, "If, on the other hand, the investigation proves to the satisfaction of the legislature that there was sufficient fraud and illegality to affect the results of the election, the Legislature certifies the Trump electors. Upon reconvening the Joint Session of Congress, those votes are counted and TRUMP WINS." Memo ¶ III.d.ii.

15. The six-page memo stated that the proposed plan was "BOLD" but further stated that "this Election was Stolen by a strategic Democrat plan to systematically flout existing election laws for partisan advantage; we're no longer playing by Queensbury Rules, therefore." Respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that this assertion was false and misleading because there was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely of any widespread election fraud or illegality, much less any widespread election fraud or illegality resulting from a strategic Democrat plan to systematically flout existing election laws, that could have affected the outcome of the election.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 15 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent ADMITS that the memo contains the passages quoted in Paragraph 15 of the NDC. Respondent DENIES that the statements were false and misleading, or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing that they were false and misleading. Although Respondent DENIES that the memo makes any assertion about whether the illegality and fraud "affected the outcome of the election," he ADMITS that the memo outlines significant evidence of both illegality and fraud in the election, all of which claims were true. As for whether the illegality and fraud resulted from a strategic Democrat plan to systematically flout existing election laws, there was significant evidence of that claim at the time, including evidence in Pennsylvania of election officials providing advance notice of defective mail-in ballots to Democrat operatives before the law allowed; an apparently collusive suit between a Democrat-leaning NGO and the Democrat Secretary of State in Pennsylvania to eliminate signature verification; coordination between the Biden campaign and Democrat county election officials of an illegal "human drop box" ballot harvesting effort in Wisconsin dubbed "Democracy in the Park," see Trump v. Biden, 951 N.W.2d 568, 590 (Dec. 14, 2020) (Roggensack, J., dissenting, 15 joined by) (noting that "the 17,271 ballots that were collected in Madison parks did not comply with the statutes"); M. D. Kittle, Is Biden sponsoring Madison city voter event?, Empower Wisconsin (Sept. 25, 2020). 16 These and other efforts were subsequently described in an important, eye-opening Time Magazine article by Molly Ball as a "conspiracy" by leftist groups and anti-Trump Republicans. Headed by Mike Podhorzer, long-time Democrat activist and senior advisor to the President of the AFL-CIO, one of the Democrat parties strongest allies, Ball described the "conspiracy" as "a well-funded cabal of powerful people, ranging across industries and ideologies, working together behind the scenes to influence perceptions, change rules and laws, steer media coverage and control the flow of information," not to "rig" the election, they claimed, but to "fortify" it against Trump and his supposed "assault on democracy." Molly Ball, The Secret History of the Shadow Campaign that Saved the 2020 Election, Time (Feb. 4, 2021).

16. The six-page memo advised that if Pence "determine[d] that the ongoing election challenges must conclude before ballots can be counted, and adjourns the joint session of Congress," then "[t]aking the cue, state legislatures [could] convene, order a comprehensive audit/investigation of the election returns in their states, and then determine whether the slate of electors initially certified is valid, or whether the alternative slate of electors should be certified by the legislature." Respondent cited 3 U.S.C. § 2 as the statutory basis for state legislatures' purported legal authority to appoint or certify electors after Election Day. Respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that 3 U.S.C. § 2 did not authorize any state legislature to appoint or certify electors after Election Day in the factual circumstances present in the 2020 election.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 16 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent ADMITS that the memo contains the passages quoted in Paragraph 16 of the NDC. Respondent DENIES the assertion "that 3 U.S.C. § 2 did not authorize any state legislature to appoint or certify electors after Election Day in the factual circumstances present in the 2020 election." Respondent further DENIES that he knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that 3 U.S.C. § 2 does not authorize legislative action after a failed election such as one conducted in unconstitutional violation of the "manner" for choosing presidential electors set out by the state legislature in the exercise of the plenary power conferred upon it by Article II of the U.S. Constitution. 3 U.S.C. § 2 expressly provides that "Whenever any State has held an election for the purpose of choosing electors, and has failed to make a choice on the day prescribed by law, the electors may be appointed on a subsequent day in such a manner as the legislature of such State may direct." Furthermore, Article II of the Constitution assigns to the "Legislatures" of the States plenary power to direct the manner of choosing presidential electors. The Supreme Court has noted that the Legislatures can re-claim that power "at any time." McPhearson v. Blacker, 146 U.S. 1, 35 (1892) (citing with approval Sen. Rep. 1st Sess. 43rd Cong. No. 395). When, as occurred here, the election was conducted in a manner contrary to the manner specified by the legislature, the election itself is invalid and the state legislature has the authority, under both Article II and 3 U.S.C. § 2, to determine how to proceed in the appointment of electors. This was the holding by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in Trump v. Wisconsin Election Commission, which expressly held that Trump had standing because "A favorable ruling [to Trump's claims that state election officials had violated the "manner" for conducting the election set out by the Legislature] would provide the opportunity for the appointment of a new slate of electors. From there, it would be for the Wisconsin Legislature to decide the next steps in advance of Congress's count of the Electoral College's votes on January 6, 2021." Trump v. Wisconsin Elections Comm'n, 983 F.3d 919, 924-25 (7th Cir. 2020). Three Justices of the Wisconsin Supreme Court subsequently acknowledged a related point: "If elections are conducted outside of the law, the people have not conferred their consent on the government. Such elections are unlawful and their results are illegitimate." Teigen v. Wisconsin Elections Comm'n, 2022 WI 64, ¶ 23, 403 Wis. 2d 607, 627, 976 N.W.2d 519, 530 (Bradley, J., joined by Ziegler, C.J., and Roggensack, J.).

17. The two-page and six-page memos proposed that Pence exercise unilateral authority to resolve purported disputes regarding electoral votes or delay the counting of electoral votes.

Respondent proposed that Pence exercise this unilateral authority in the context of proposing a detailed plan for Pence to take actions to reverse the legitimate results of the 2020 election to secure Trump's re-election in the context of a legal proceeding—the counting of electoral votes at the Joint Session of Congress—that was not a judicial proceeding before a court. Respondent advised Trump and Pence to "[1]et the other side challenge [Pence's] actions in court" and suggested that the plaintiffs "who would press a lawsuit would have their past position – that these are non-justiciable political questions – thrown back at them, to get the lawsuit dismissed." Respondent's proposed plan thus presupposed that Pence would take unilateral action without subsequent judicial review of its legality.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 17 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that the six-page memo (of which the two-page memo was but a preliminary draft component) proposes any particular course of action. It was, rather, a description of 9 different scenarios, none of which were "proposed." Respondent DENIES that the memo proposes a detailed plan for any particular action. Respondent DENIES that the memo proposed "to reverse the legitimate results of the 2020 election." Whether or not the results of the 2020 election were "legitimate" was hotly disputed at the time and remains so. Moreover, none of the scenarios described in the memo would "reverse" "legitimate" election results. In five of the nine scenarios, "Biden Wins." The temporary adjournment scenario invited further investigation into the illegality and fraud of the election, and expressly noted that "If, after investigation, proven fraud and illegality is insufficient to alter the results of the election, the original slate of electors would remain valid. BIDEN WINS." Memo ¶ III.d.i (emphasis in original). "If, on the other hand," that scenario explained, "the investigation proves to the satisfaction of the legislature that there was sufficient fraud and illegality to affect the results of the election, the Legislature certifies

the Trump electors. Upon reconvening the Joint Session of Congress, those votes are counted and TRUMP WINS." Memo ¶ III.d.ii. That result is similar to the one described in Scenario III.c.i, in which the State Legislatures in the contested states had certified the Trump electors to have been the legitimate winners of the election, in which case "Trump The remaining two scenarios described the situation where, "based on all the evidence and the letters from state legislators calling into question the executive certifications" of Biden electors, the legitimate outcome of the state's election could not be determined and neither slate of electors would be counted. None of the scenarios therefore involved "revers[ing] legitimate" election results, but rather discussed options for confirming what were in fact that actual election results. Respondent ADMITS that the Joint Session of Congress is "not a judicial proceeding before a court." Respondent ADMITS that if, as several scholars have contended, the counting of electoral votes in the Joint Session of Congress is a non-justiciable political question because the Twelfth Amendment is a "textual commitment" of that authority elsewhere than the courts, then subsequent judicial review would not be permissible. That's what it means for an issue to be a non-justiciable political question. See, e.g., Baker v. Carr, 369 U.S. 186, 217 (1962) ("Prominent on the surface of any case held to involve a political question is found a textually demonstrable constitutional commitment of the issue to a coordinate political department"); see also, e.g., Laurence H. Tribe, Erog .v Hsub and Its Disguises: Freeing Bush v. Gore from Its Hall of Mirrors, 115 Harv. L. Rev. 170, 277 (2001) ("There is a powerful case indeed for the Court playing no role other than to protect Congress's decision-making function-that is, for treating the matter as a political question textually committed to Congress under the Twelfth Amendment, rather than a legal question properly resolved by a court."); Erwin Chemerinsky, Bush v. Gore Was Not Justiciable, 76 Notre Dame L. Rev. 1093, 1107 (2001) (contending that the Supreme Court erred in deciding Bush v. Gore because the Twelfth Amendment is a "textual commitment" of the counting of electoral votes to a branch of government other than the courts); Beverly J. Ross & William Josephson, The

Rec. 203 (1969) (statement of Sen. Muskie) (stating that although the issue of whether there was a remedy for faithless electors had not yet been "settled in the courts," the validity of an elector's vote could be "a political question, to which the courts will not address themselves").

18. Respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that the courses of action he proposed to Pence in the two and six page memos were contrary to and unsupported by the historical record, and contrary to and unsupported by established legal authority and precedent, including the Electoral Count Act and the Twelfth Amendment. Respondent's legal theory to support his proposed courses of action was based on misinterpreted historical sources, misinterpreted law review articles, and law review articles which he knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, were themselves fundamentally flawed, such that no reasonable attorney with expertise in constitutional or election law would conclude that Pence was legally authorized to take the actions that respondent proposed. Moreover, in the course of an email exchange with another individual in early October 2020, respondent himself had recognized that these courses of action were improper. In that earlier email exchange, respondent stated that he he (sic) did not agree that Pence, who serves as President of the Senate, could determine which votes to count on January 6, 2021, because "3 U.S.C. § 12 says merely that [the President of the Senate] is the presiding officer, and then it spells out specific procedures, presumptions, and default rules for which slates will be counted. Nowhere does it suggest that the President of the Senate gets to make the determination on his own. § 15 doesn't, either." In that earlier email exchange, respondent further stated that he did not agree that, in the event of a dispute between a state legislature and the state's governor or popular vote regarding the appointment of electors, the legislature determines the appointment of electors, stating "I don't think [Article II] entitles the Legislature to change the rules after the election and appoint a different slate of electors in a manner different than what was in place on election day. And 3 U.S.C. § 15 gives dispositive weight to the slate of electors that was certified by the Governor in accord with 3 U.S.C. § 5."

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 18 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that he proposed a course of action to Vice President Pence in the six-page memo (of which the two-page memo was but a preliminary draft component). Respondent DENIES that the scenarios described in the six-page memo that were grounded on an assertion that the Constitution assigns judgment authority to the President of the Senate over the counting of disputed electoral votes "were contrary to and unsupported by the historical record, and contrary to and unsupported by established legal authority and precedent," or that he knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that the scenarios were so unsupported. To the contrary, numerous scholarly sources have either advocated for or acknowledged the plausibility of just such an interpretation of the text of the Twelfth Amendment and its predecessor language in Article II, including John Yoo and Robert Delahunty, What Happens if No One Wins?, American Mind (Oct. 19, 2020) ("Though the 12th Amendment describes the counting in the passive voice, the language seems to envisage a single, continuous process in which the Vice President both opens and counts the votes. ... the Senate").²¹ The Bar investigators appear to concede that the scholarship on which Respondent relied supported his position, but they disregard it as, in their view, "fundamentally flawed." Respondent DENIES that he misinterpreted these scholarly articles or the historical sources analyzed therein. Respondent DENIES that these scholarly articles were "fundamentally flawed," yet even if they were, legal positions that are "debatable" on issues for which the law is "unsettled," and based on the exercise of informed judgment, are protected under California's judgment immunity rule. Mutuelles Unies v. Kroll & Linstrom, 957 F.2d 707 (9th Cir. 1992) (citing Davis v. Damrell, 119 Cal.App.3d 883, 174 Cal.Rptr. 257, 259 (1981)). Respondent also DENIES that the legal position regarding the Vice President's preeminent role under the Constitution in the counting of electoral votes was "improper," or that he ever made such a claim in the referenced email exchange in early October or otherwise. Rather, in that email exchange, he disagreed with the claim that the Electoral Count Act assigned such authority to the Vice President, but the constitutionality of the Electoral Count Act was not discussed. Respondent ADMITS that in the comments to a draft letter prepared by a correspondent of Respondent's (which was never sent and to which Respondent never assented), he wrote: "I don't think [Article II] entitles the Legislature to change the rules after the election and appoint a different slate of electors in a manner different than what was in place on election day. And 3 U.S.C. § 15 gives dispositive weight to the slate of electors that was certified by the Governor in accord with 3 U.S.C. § 5." Respondent DENIES that the statement indicates a belief by Respondent that a state legislature could not appoint electors after an election that was conducted unconstitutionally, in violation of the "manner" for choosing electors established by the legislature pursuant to its plenary power under Article II. Respondent ADMITS that 3 U.S.C. § 15 purports to give dispositive weight to electors certified by a state's Governor, but DENIES that § 15 could constitutionally do so in the event that the Legislature of a State, acting pursuant to its plenary power under Article II, selected a different slate of electors following an election that was unconstitutionally conducted in violation of the legislature's election code.

19. On January 4, 2021, respondent and Trump invited Pence, Pence's White House Counsel Greg Jacob ("Jacob"), and Pence's Chief of Staff Marc Short ("Short") to the Oval Office to discuss respondent's memos and the plan for Pence to take unilateral action that would result in Trump's re-election. During the meeting, respondent presented only two courses of action for Pence to take on January 6: to reject the electors from seven states that respondent falsely and misleadingly asserted had submitted "dual slates of electors," or delay the count to give those states' legislatures time to certify Trump's electors using a purported authority that respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, they did not possess. During the meeting on January 4, Pence stated to respondent that he did not possess the legal authority to carry out either of respondent's proposals.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 19 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that he invited anyone to the Oval Office meeting on January 4, 2021. Respondent DENIES that he discussed his memos at that meeting. Indeed, as Pence's General Counsel Greg Jacob stated in his deposition before the House Select Committee, the memos were not presented at the meeting, see Jacob Tr. at 85:20-21, and had never been provided to Pence's General Counsel, Jacob Tr. at 87:5-8, or, to Respondent's knowledge, Pence himself or anyone else on Pence's staff. Respondent ADMITS that the role of the Vice President under the Twelfth Amendment was discussed at the meeting. Respondent DENIES that "only two courses of action" were presented to the Vice President. Respondent DENIES that the claim regarding "dual slates of electors" was false and misleading, or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing that it was false and misleading. The statement was in fact true, just as there were "dual slates of electors" from Hawaii in 1960 – the Vice President Nixon electors who had been certified as victors, and the Senator Kennedy electors, both sets of which met on the designated day in December 1960, cast their electoral votes, and transmitted those votes to the President of the Senate. Respondent DENIES that Vice President Pence stated at the meeting that he did not have authority either to reject contested electoral votes or to delay proceeding for further investigation. Rather, as Mr. Jacob noted in his deposition before the Select Committee, "the Vice President mostly asked a series of questions in that meeting." Jacob Tr. at 95:11-12. He departed the meeting after telling the President that he would give the matter further consideration and that his staff would have further discussions with Respondent.

20. On January 5, 2021, respondent met again with Jacob and Short. At the meeting, respondent stated "I'm here asking you to reject the electors." Jacob and respondent debated the merits of respondent's legal arguments. Over the course of their discussion, respondent retreated from his initial request "to reject the electors," shifting focus to asking Pence to delay the count because delaying the count would be more "palatable." During the discussion, respondent conceded that the positions he was urging Pence to take were contrary to historical practice, violated several provisions of statutory law, and would likely be unanimously rejected by the Supreme Court.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 20 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that he asked during the meeting on January 5, 2021, that Pence simply reject the electors. He is aware of testimony by Messers. Jacob and Short to that effect, but has no recollection of making such a statement and, given his explicit statement in the oval office the evening before that it would be foolish to do so absent certification of alternate electors by state legislatures, finds it implausible that he would have made such a Respondent ADMITS that during the discussion about whether the Vice statement. President could accede to requests from more than a hundred state legislators to delay the electoral vote count for a brief period to allow for further investigation of illegal and fraud in the election, he and Mr. Jacob discussed the doctrine of non-justiciable political questions and he agreed that, if Pence were to simply reject electors without certification by legislatures of alternate electors as others had previously suggested, the Supreme Court would likely find a way around the non-justiciability problem and rule 9-0 against such an action. But Respondent DENIES that he ever agreed that a decision to delay the proceedings would likely be rejected by the Supreme Court, unanimously or otherwise. In fact, he expressly wrote to Mr. Jacob that he believed such an action "had a fair chance of being approved (or at least not enjoined) by the Courts." Respondent DENIES that the scenario of a brief delay to allow for investigation of the impact of illegality and fraud on the election was without historical precedent, or that he conceded as much. In fact, a lengthy delay in the counting of electoral votes occurred in 1877 following the contested Hayes-Tilden election of 1876. Respondent DENIES that the contention that the Vice President had authority to assess the validity of contested electoral votes was without historical precedent, or that he conceded as much. In fact, Respondent expressly noted that Vice President Adams in 1797, Vice President Jefferson in 1801, and Vice President Nixon in 1961 had all exercised such authority. The President Pro Tem of the Senate (the office of Vice President being vacant at the time) also exercised such authority in 1857 in determining to count votes from Wisconsin that had not been cast on the "uniform" date specified by Congress. Respondent DENIES that he conceded that a brief delay in the electoral count proceedings would violate "several provisions" of the Electoral Count Act. Respondent ADMITS that he acknowledged that acceding to requests from numerous state legislators for a brief delay might be contrary to the provision in 3 U.S.C. § 16 against dissolving the Joint Session of Congress prior to the completion of the count of electoral votes or against recess of the session, but he expressly asserted that to the extent the Act interfered with authority provided directly by the Constitution, the Act itself was unconstitutional. He also notes that that the requests from state legislators was not to "dissolve" the Joint Session but merely to adjourn it for a brief period of a week or ten days and he further notes that § 16 expressly provides that "no recess shall be taken unless a question shall have arisen in regard to counting any such votes," which was surely the case at the time.

21. The actions respondent proposed in his two-page and six-page memos, and that he urged Pence to take in their meetings on January 4 and 5, 2021, provided support for messages Trump sent to his followers on Twitter on the morning of January 6, 2021. On January 6, 2021, at approximately 1:00 a.m., Trump sent a message to his followers on Twitter stating, "If Vice President @Mike_Pence comes through for us, we will win the Presidency . . . Mike can send it back!" At approximately 8:17 a.m., Trump sent another message on Twitter stating, "States want to correct their votes . . . All Mike Pence has to do is send them back to the States, AND WE WIN. Do it Mike, this is a time for extreme courage!"

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 21 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that he proposed any particular "actions" in the six-page memo (of which the two-page memo was a draft component). Rather, that memo outlined nine different scenarios for discussion without proposing any one of them. Respondent DENIES that he proposed "actions" (plural) in the meetings of January 4 and 5, 2021. Respondent ADMITS that he proposed that the Vice President accede to requests from more than a hundred state legislators for a brief delay to allow the state legislatures in the contested states to consider the impact, if any, of acknowledged illegality and fraud on the results of the election. Respondent has no knowledge, and therefore DENIES, whether President Trump's tweets

on the morning of January 6 were based on the advice he gave, but ADMITS that the tweets were consistent with that advice and demonstrate that the advice was to delay proceedings, not to reject electoral votes outright.

22. On or about January 6, 2021, respondent spoke to a crowd of tens of thousands of people who attended a rally, promoted as a "Save America" march, at the Ellipse of the National Mall in Washington, D.C. Respondent's speech was broadcast live on television. Respondent was introduced by Rudy Giuliani as "Professor Eastman," and described as "one of the preeminent constitutional scholars in the United States." In his speech, with the intent of promoting doubt in the results of the election, respondent stated to the audience, "We know there was fraud, traditional fraud that occurred. We know that dead people voted." Respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that, as an attempt to cast doubt on the results of the election, this statement was false and misleading, in that, as respondent knew at the time, there was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely of fraud in any state election, involving deceased voters or otherwise, which could have affected the outcome of the election. In fact, while Trump claimed that some 5,000 ballots in Georgia were cast by deceased voters, the Georgia State Election Board found just four such votes, all of which had been returned by relatives. Similarly, Michigan's Office of the Auditor General determined that only 1,616 votes in Michigan, or 0.03% of the total ballots, were cast by voters who were deceased on Election Day and primarily involved people who were alive when they voted prior to Election Day. And, the Nevada Secretary of State determined that only 10 dead voters had ballots cast in their names.

thousands of people" in attendance, and has estimated, based on aerial photographs of crowds at similar events on the National Mall, that the crowd was likely somewhere between 250,000 and 500,000 people. Respondent ADMITS that Rudy Giuliani introduced him as "one of the preeminent constitutional scholars in the United States." Respondent ADMITS that he made the statements quoted and attributed to him in Paragraph 22 of the NDC. Respondent DENIES that his intent was to "promote doubt" rather than to highlight the acknowledged illegality and serious allegations of fraud in the conduct of the election. Respondent DENIES that he ever alleged that enough votes were fraudulently cast on behalf of deceased persons to have affected the outcome of the election. Respondent DENIES that his statement that "dead people voted" (or rather, that votes were cast of behalf of deceased people) was false and misleading, or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing that it was false and misleading. Indeed, it is a true statement of fact, as the Bar investigators acknowledge later in the same paragraph when recounting that election officials in Georgia, Michigan, and Nevada had acknowledged that votes were cast by deceased persons and counted. It was also supported by expert analysis submitted as Exhibit 3 to the Verified Complaint in Trump v. Raffensperger, ¶ 101.22 It was also supported by the unrebutted expert analysis submitted in the Nevada case of Law v. Whitmer, No. 10 OC 00163 1B (Nev. Dist. Ct., Carson City). See id., Report of Jesse Kamzol,²³ Contestant's Designation of Expert Witness – Jesse Kamzol (submitted Nov. 30, 2020). The allegation in Paragraph 22 of the NDC that the "dead people voted" claim was false is itself demonstrably and knowingly false, therefore, a violation of the ethical duty not to make a false statement of fact to the court, Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(d), and a sanctionable "act involving moral turpitude, dishonesty or corruption" in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.

Respondent has no specific knowledge, and therefore DENIES, whether President Trump claimed "that some 5,000 ballots in Georgia were cast by deceased voters," but even if such a statement was made, the NDC does not allege that the statement was made based on any advice given by Respondent; it is therefore irrelevant to the charges made against Respondent.

- 23. During his January 6 speech at the Ellipse, respondent also stated that Dominion electronic voting machines had fraudulently manipulated the election results during the November 3, 2020, presidential election and during the January 5, 2021, run-off election in Georgia for its two Senate seats. Respondent stated that "[t]hey" put ballots "in a secret folder in the machines, sitting there waiting until they know how many they need," and that after the polls closed, "unvoted ballots" were matched with "an unvoted voter" to fraudulently change the election totals in favor of Joe Biden and the Democratic candidates in the Georgia runoff election. Respondent further stated that analysis of the vote percentages showed that "they were unloading the ballots from that secret folder, matching them—matching them to the unvoted voter and voila we have enough votes to barely get over the finish line." Respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that these statements were false and misleading in that, as respondent knew at the time:
 - There was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely of fraud through electronic manipulation of Dominion voting tabulation machines. In fact, respondent knew that on or about November 12, 2020, the Elections Infrastructure Government Coordinating Council and the Election Infrastructure Sector Coordinating Executive Committees issued a joint statement which stated that the "2020 presidential election was the most secure in American history" and "there was no evidence that any voting system deleted or lost votes, changed votes, or was in any way compromised." Furthermore, no reliable evidence emerged after November 12, 2020, that there was any electronic manipulation of voting tabulation.

b) No reasonable expert in statistical analysis of election results would conclude that the vote percentages related to the Dominion voting machines indicated that the machines had been used to fraudulently manipulate the election results.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 23 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent ADMITS that he made the statements attributed to him in Paragraph 23 of the NDC. Respondent DENIES that the statements were false and misleading, or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing that they were false and misleading. Dr. Eastman was personally advised on the evening of January 5, 2021, of the existence of suspense folders in the electronic voting machines by forensic experts who had been involved in the forensic audit conducted in Antrim County, Michigan. That information is also contained in an affidavit submitted by one of those experts, Russell Ramsland, in the case of Wood v. Raffensperger, No. 20-cv-04651, Dkt. #70-1, ¶ 14 (N.D. Ga. Nov. 25, 2020) (noting that "Dominion also has a 'Blank Ballot Override' function that is essentially a 'save for later' bucket that can be manually populated by the operator later"). 24 Those same experts advised Eastman that an increase in the total number of ballots cast (the "denominator" in the calculation for percentage of votes reported), plus a suspension of counting, late in the evening on election day, would strongly indicate that pre-scanned ballots were being loaded from the suspense folder and then matched to voters on the voter rolls who had not voted. Those experts observed that phenomenon during the U.S. Senate runoff election in Georgia on January 5 and reported their conclusions to Dr. Eastman. Subsequent to his speech, Dr. Eastman also confirmed the "increase in the denominator" phenomenon with a separate set of experts and provided evidence of that expert analysis to the Bar investigators. See Chapman062955. That such a manipulation was possible was subsequently confirmed when, in the June 2021 New York City Mayoral election, 135,000 ballots that had been preloaded into the voting machines during a "test" were counted in the initial election results. See Ryan W. Miller, 135,000 'test' ballots mistakenly added: How NYC's election board got the results so wrong, USA Today (June 30, 2021).²⁵

Respondent ADMITS the assertion in subparagraph (a) that he was aware that the Elections Infrastructure Government Coordinating Council and the Election Infrastructure Sector Coordinating Executive Committees had issued a joint statement which stated that the "2020 presidential election was the most secure in American history" and "there was no evidence that any voting system deleted or lost votes, changed votes, or was in any way compromised." Respondent DENIES that the statement was credible, however, as he was also aware that a forensic audit conducted by Allied Security Operations Group in Antrim County, Michigan had confirmed a "the vote 'flip' from Trump to Biden." That votes were flipped from Trump to Biden was confirmed by the State of Michigan's own expert, Alex Halderman, in a report issued in March 2021. J. Alex Halderman, Analysis of the Antrim County, Michigan November 2020 Election Incident (March 26, 2021).²⁷ Expert statistical analysis of absentee ballot patterns conducted by Thomas Davis and Dr. William M. Briggs, Irrational MI Absentee Ballots Findings (Nov. 28, 2020), in Michigan 2020 Voting Analysis Report, pp. 18-22,²⁸ contrasting 2016 and 2020 absentee ballot results also provided "very strong evidence that the absentee voting counts in some counties in Michigan have likely been manipulated by a computer algorithm." The anomalous "parallel snakes" phenomenon was observed in several Michigan counties, including Ingham County, depicted below.

This same group of experts, with whom Dr. Eastman was working, identified the same "parallel snakes" phenomenon in the January 5, 2021 Georgia Senate Runoff Election, noting that it "reeks of a computer algorithm." See Chapman063479.²⁹ Based on these expert analyses and other evidence, Respondent likewise DENIES the assertion in subparagraph (b) that "No reasonable expert in statistical analysis of election results would conclude that the vote percentages related to the Dominion voting machines indicated that the machines had been used to fraudulently manipulate the election results."

24. On January 6, 2021, before the Joint Session of Congress began, Pence publicly rejected respondent's proposed plan in a written statement that concluded: "It is my considered judgment that my oath to support and defend the Constitution constrains me from claiming unilateral authority to determine which electoral votes should be counted and which should not." Respondent, however, concluded his January 6 speech at the Ellipse by stating: "And all we are demanding of Vice President Pence is this afternoon at 1:00 he let the legislators of the state look into this so we get to the bottom of it, and the American people know whether we have control of the direction of our government, or not. We no longer live in a self-governing republic if we can't get the answer to this question. This is bigger than President Trump. It is a very essence of our republican form of government, and it has to be done. And anybody that is not willing to stand up to do it, does not deserve to be in the office. It is that simple." Respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that this assertion that Pence had the authority to delay the counting of electoral votes at the Joint Session of Congress for any reason, including to give states time to investigate purported voting irregularities, was contrary to and unsupported by the historical record; that it was contrary to and unsupported by established legal authority and precedent, including the Electoral Count Act and the Twelfth Amendment; and that no reasonable attorney with expertise in constitutional or election law would conclude that Pence was legally authorized to delay the counting of electoral votes at the Joint Session of Congress to give states time to investigate purported voting irregularities.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 24 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent ADMITS that Vice President Pence asserted in his "Dear Colleague" letter of January 6, 2021, that "Some believe that as Vice President, I should be able to accept or reject electoral votes unilaterally." Respondent DENIES that he advised Vice President Pence to exercise such unilateral authority to reject electoral votes. Indeed, in the very next sentence of this paragraph, the Bar investigators acknowledge that Respondent's recommendation, in a speech that is protected by the First Amendment, was not to "reject" electoral votes himself, but to delay the proceedings in order to "let the legislators of the state look into" what Pence himself, earlier in the "Dear Colleague" letter, admitted were "significant allegations of voting irregularities and numerous instances of officials setting aside state election law," which is to say, conducting the election unconstitutionally, in violation of the plenary power Article II assigns to the state legislatures to direct the manner of choosing presidential electors. As Wisconsin Supreme Court Justice Bradley noted in the Teigen case, "Such elections are unlawful and their results are illegitimate." Teigen v. Wisconsin Elections Comm'n, 2022 WI 64, ¶ 23, 403 Wis. 2d 607, 627, 976 N.W.2d 519, 530 (Bradley, J., joined by Ziegler, C.J., and Roggensack, J.).

Respondent DENIES that he knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that the "assertion that Pence had the authority to delay the counting of electoral votes at the Joint Session of Congress for any reason, including to give states time to investigate purported voting irregularities, was contrary to and unsupported by the historical record; that it was contrary to and unsupported by established legal authority and precedent, including the Electoral Count Act and the Twelfth Amendment." Congress itself, in 1877, delayed the electoral vote count for months in order to allow a special commission that it created time to investigate election irregularities and competing slates of electors. Moreover, remanding an illegal election to the state legislature, consistent with the authority conferred upon it by Article II, is the remedy that the Seventh Circuit recognized in Trump v. Wisconsin Elections Comm'n, 983 F.3d 919, 924–25 (7th Cir. 2020): "A favorable ruling [to Trump's claims that state election officials had violated the "manner" for conducting the election set out by the Legislature] would provide the opportunity for the appointment of a new slate of electors. From there, it would be for the Wisconsin Legislature to decide the next steps in advance of Congress's count of the Electoral College's votes on January 6, 2021." That a decision to delay in order to allow state legislatures to assess the impact of the illegality that Pence himself acknowledged had not been taken by prior Vice Presidents is not dispositive, as nothing quite like the illegality of the 2020 election had ever been presented, but scholarly assessment of the meaning of the original Article II and the 12th Amendment's conferral of a non-ministerial power upon the Vice President to make a judgment as to the counting of electoral votes, certainly provides at least a colorable argument to support a delay to allow the legislatures time to address the unconstitutional usurpation of their plenary power to direct the manner of choosing presidential electors. That scholarship is set out at length in the response to NDC ¶ 6 above.

25. After respondent completed his speech, Trump took the podium and stated to the crowd and television audience: "Thank you very much, John. John is one of the most brilliant lawyers in the country, and he looked at this and he said, 'What an absolute disgrace that this can be happening to our Constitution.' Because if Mike Pence does the right thing, we win the election. All he has to do, all this is, this is from the number one, or certainly one of the top, Constitutional lawyers in our country. He has the absolute right to do it." Trump concluded his speech by urging his supporters to walk with him to the Capitol: "Now, it is up to Congress to confront this egregious assault on our democracy. And after this, we're going to walk down, and I'll be there with you, we're going to walk down, we're going to walk down. Wle're going to try and give our Republicans, the weak ones because the strong ones don't need any of our help. We're going to try and give them the kind of pride and boldness that they need to take back our country. So let's walk down Pennsylvania Avenue."

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 25 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. President Trump's speech, that President Trump described him as "one of the most brilliant lawyers in the country" and "the number one, or certainly one of the top, Constitutional lawyers in our country." Respondent ADMITS, based on news reports and video transcripts, that President Trump concluded his speech with the words quoted in Paragraph 25 of the NDC, but DENIES that President Trump's speech, protected by both the First Amendment's Speech and Petition Clauses, has any relevance to the charges levelled against Respondent.

26. After Trump's speech, hundreds of protesters left the rally and stormed the Capitol Building. Some of the protestors were armed with weapons, and the mob overwhelmed law enforcement and violently broke into the Capitol in an attempt to prevent the Joint Session of Congress from counting the electoral votes that would result in Biden's victory. While the violent protestors were attacking the Capitol Building, respondent and Trump continued to urge Pence to delay the electoral vote count.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 26 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent has no first-hand knowledge of, and therefore DENIES, the assertion that "hundreds of protesters left the rally and stormed the Capitol," or that "[s]ome of the protestors were armed with weapons." He is unaware than anyone in the crowd assembled at the Ellipse was "armed with weapons" and because entrance to the rally area reportedly required screening through metal detectors, finds such a claim to be implausible. Respondent is aware, from news accounts, that some protestors at the Capitol nearly two miles away from the Ellipse entered Capitol grounds and the Capitol itself while President Trump was still speaking, and based on that DENIES that the initial breach of the Capitol was made by "hundreds of protesters who left the rally" "[a]fter Trump's speech." Respondent has no first-hand knowledge of, and therefore DENIES, that the purpose of those who entered the Capitol was "to prevent the Joint Session of Congress from counting the electoral votes that would result in Biden's victory. Respondent DENIES that he had any communication with Vice President Pence on January 6, 2021, either before the Capitol breach, during the Capitol breach when the Joint Session of Congress was suspended, or after the Joint Session of Congress resumed.

27. Shortly after 2:00 p.m., protestors broke windows and climbed into the Capitol Building, opening doors for other protestors to enter the building. At approximately 2:20 p.m., Secret Service agents removed Pence from the Senate floor, and the Senate and House were abruptly called to recess as the mob of protestors moved further into the building. At approximately 2:24 p.m., Trump posted a message on Twitter stating "Mike Pence didn't have the courage to do what should have been done to protect our Country and our Constitution."

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 27 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent has no direct knowledge of, and therefore DENIES, the assertions made in Paragraph 27 of the NDC.

28. At approximately 12:14 p.m. on January 6, 2021, Jacob had sent to respondent an email that stated, "I just don't in the end believe that there is a single Justice on the United States Supreme Court, or a single judge on any of our Courts of Appeals, who is as 'broad minded' as you when it comes to the irrelevance of statutes enacted by the United States Congress, and followed without exception for more than 130 years." by the opposition, and essentially entirely made up." At approximately 2:25 p.m., respondent replied to Jacob's email, stating, "You think you can't adjourn the session because the [Electoral Count Act] says no adjournment, while the compelling evidence that the election was stolen continues to build and is already overwhelming? The 'siege' is because YOU and your boss did not do what was necessary to allow this to be aired in a public way so the American people can see for themselves what happened." Respondent knew that his statement that there was "compelling" and "overwhelming" evidence that the election was "stolen" was false and misleading, in that, as respondent knew at the time:

- a) There was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely that the election was "stolen" by the Democratic Party or any other actors. In fact, respondent had been informed by numerous credible sources, including the Attorney General of the United States, and knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that numerous courts had held, that there was no evidence of widespread election fraud or illegality that could have affected the outcome of the election.
- b) There was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely of fraud through electronic manipulation of voting tabulation machines. In fact, respondent knew that on or about November 12, 2020, the Elections Infrastructure Government Coordinating Council and the Election Infrastructure Sector Coordinating Executive Committees issued a joint statement which stated that the "2020 presidential election was the most secure in American history" and "there was no evidence that any voting system deleted or lost votes, changed votes, or was in any way compromised." Furthermore, no reliable evidence emerged after November 12, 2020, that there was any electronic manipulation of voting tabulation.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 28 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent ADMITS that the passages quoted in Paragraph 28 are contained in an intemperate, heat-of-the-moment email exchange initiated by Greg Jacob. Respondent DENIES that his assertion of "compelling" and "overwhelming" evidence of illegality and fraud in the election was false and misleading, or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing that it was false and misleading. Respondent OBJECTS to the allegations contained in subparagraph (a) as duplicative of those contained in Paragraphs 3, 4, 5, and 11, and DENIES those allegations for the reasons set forth in his response to those paragraphs. Respondent OBJECTS to the allegations contained in subparagraph (b) as duplicative of those contained in Paragraph 23(a), and DENIES those allegations for the reasons set forth in his response to that paragraph.

29. At approximately 5:40 p.m., Capitol Police cleared and secured the Capitol building, and Congressional leaders announced that they would proceed with counting the electoral votes. At approximately 6:09 p.m., respondent sent Jacob another email which stated that "adjourn[ing] to allow the state legislatures to continue their work" was the "most prudent course."

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 29 of the NDC on the ground that they are compound. Notwithstanding that objection, Respondent has no direct knowledge of, and therefore DENIES, the allegation contained in the first sentence of Paragraph 29. Respondent ADMITS that the language quoted in the second sentence of Paragraph 29 is contained in an email he sent to Mr. Jacob.

30. At approximately 11:32 p.m., after a nearly nine-hour delay, the House and Senate resumed the Joint Session. In an email to Jacob sent at approximately 11:44 p.m. on January 6, 2021, respondent stated, "The Senate and House have both violated the Electoral Count Act this evening – they debated the Arizona objections for more than 2 hours. Violation of 3 USC 17. And the VP allowed further debate or statements by leadership after the question had been voted upon. Violation of 3 USC 17. And they had that debate upon motion approved by the VP, in violation of the requirement in 3 USC 15 that after the vote in the separate houses, 'they shall immediately again meet.' So now that the precedent has been set that the Electoral Count Act is not quite so sacrosanct as was previously claimed, I implore you to consider one more relatively minor violation [of the law] and adjourn for 10 days to allow the legislatures to finish their investigations, as well as to allow a full forensic audit of the massive amount of illegal activity that has occurred here." At approximately 3:42 a.m. on January 7, 2021, Pence announced that a majority of votes in the Electoral College votes had been cast for Biden and that Biden had thus been elected to the presidency.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 30 of the NDC on the ground that they are compound. Notwithstanding that objection, Respondent has no direct knowledge of, and therefore DENIES, the allegations contained in the first and third sentences of Paragraph 30. Respondent ADMITS that the language quoted in the second sentence of Paragraph 30, except for the phrase set out in brackets, is contained in an email he sent to Mr. Jacob. Respondent ADMITS that the House and Senate both violated provisions of the Electoral Count Act by allowing debate in excess of the maximum time permitted by 3 U.S.C. § 17 (exclusive of the time the Joint Session was in recess due to the breach of the Capitol). Respondent ADMITS that Vice President Pence violated Sections 15 and 17 of the Electoral Count Act, 3 U.S.C. §§ 15, 17, by allowing further debate on the floor of the Senate after a vote on objections had been taken, and by failing to return "immediately" to the House to continue with the Joint Session of Congress following the vote on objections. Respondent ADMITS that in his email to Mr. Jacob, he accepted Mr. Jacob's prior contention that an adjournment would violate the Electoral Count Act, but he DENIES that a brief adjournment would indisputably violate the Electoral Count Act. Section 16 of the Electoral Count Act, 3 U.S.C. § 16, expressly distinguishes between the Joint Session of Congress being "dissolved" and "recess[ed]." The former is prohibited by the Act "until the count of electoral votes shall be completed and the result declared," and Respondent never advised that the Joint Session should be dissolved. A "recess" is likewise prohibited "unless a question shall have arisen in regard to counting any such votes," which was precisely the situation that presented itself, serious questions having been raised regarding the counting of electoral votes from several states. Moreover, even if the Electoral Count Act prohibited the Vice President from acceding to requests from more than a hundred state legislators for a brief delay in the proceedings to allow time for further investigation of the impact that illegality and fraud had on the election results, Respondent DENIES that a statute can interfere with powers given directly by the Constitution to the Vice President to "open" electoral certificates and, implicitly, to make a judgement about whether further investigation was warranted to assess the validity of electoral certificates in the face of what the Vice President himself acknowledged was "significant allegations of voting irregularities and numerous instances of officials setting aside state election law." See, e.g., Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch (5 U.S.) 137, 177 (1803) ("an act of the legislature, repugnant to the constitution, is void.").

31. In engaging in the course of conduct that included the acts set forth in paragraphs 8 through 30 above, by which respondent proposed and attempted to convince Pence to execute a plan unilaterally to reject the electoral votes of certain states or delay the count of electoral votes, respondent did not act with intent either to reach an accurate and reasonable legal conclusion regarding the scope of Pence's authority under the Twelfth Amendment and the Electoral Count Act or to take adequate steps to form an accurate and reasonable determination of whether the election was affected by fraud or illegality involving enough votes to have affected the outcome of the election.

DENIES that he "proposed and attempted to convince Pence to execute a plan unilaterally to reject the electoral votes of certain states." Respondent DENIES that his advice merely to accede to requests from more than a hundred state legislators to delay proceedings in order to allow a brief period of time for state legislators to assess the impact, if any, of what Pence himself acknowledged was "significant allegations of voting irregularities and numerous instances of officials [unconstitutionally] setting aside state election law" was made without "intent either to reach an accurate and reasonable legal conclusion regarding the scope of Pence's authority under the Twelfth Amendment and the Electoral Count Act or to take adequate steps to form an accurate and reasonable determination of whether the election was affected by fraud or illegality involving enough votes to have affected the outcome of the election."

- 32. By engaging in the course of conduct that included the acts set forth in paragraphs 8 through 30 above, respondent willfully failed to support the Constitution and the laws of the United States, in violation of Business and Professions Code section 6068(a), in that:
 - Without legal or factual support, respondent sought to have Vice President Pence a) unilaterally disregard the electoral votes of certain states or delay the counting of electoral votes at the Joint Session of Congress, in violation of Article II, Section 1, and the Twelfth Amendment of the United States Constitution and the Electoral Count Act (3 U.S.C. § 15);
 - b) Without legal or factual support, respondent sought to reverse the outcome of the presidential election by depriving the voters of certain states of their right to have their votes in the 2020 election determine their states' electoral votes, in violation of those states' laws, federal statutes, and the United States Constitution; and
 - c) Respondent participated in numerous overt acts in furtherance of a shared plan with Trump and others to pressure Pence to, without legal or factual support, reject the electoral votes of certain states or delay the electoral count, and thereby dishonestly conspired to obstruct the Joint Session of Congress on January 6, 2021, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 371.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 32 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, duplicative, Notwithstanding these objections, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Respondent DENIES that he "willfully failed to support the Constitution and the laws of the United States, in violation of Business and Professions Code section 6068(a)" or otherwise. On the contrary, Respondent sought further investigation and remedy for what Vice President Pence himself acknowledged to be "numerous instances of [state and local election] officials setting aside state election law" in clear violation of Article II of the Constitution's assignment to the state legislatures of plenary authority to direct the manner of choosing presidential electors. Respondent DENIES the allegations in subparagraphs (a) and (c) that he "sought to have Vice President Pence unilaterally disregard the electoral votes of certain states" or "to pressure Pence to, without legal or factual support, reject the electoral votes of certain states." Respondent ADMITS that he recommended that Vice President Pence accede to requests from more than a hundred state legislators for a brief delay in the electoral count proceedings to afford the state legislatures time to assess the impact of illegality and fraud on the election results, but he DENIES, for the reasons set out in further detail in responses above, including his responses to paragraphs 5 and 6, that the recommendation was "without legal or factual support," as alleged in subparagraphs (a), (b), and (c). Respondent DENIES the allegation in subparagraph (b) that he "sought to reverse the outcome of the presidential election by depriving the voters of certain states of their right to have their votes in the 2020 election determine their states' electoral votes, in violation of those states' laws, federal statutes, and the United States Constitution." As the "delay" scenario described in Part III.d of his six-page memo made clear, he recommended delay in order to permit further investigation of the acknowledged illegality in the conduct of the election, and expressly noted that "If, after investigation, proven fraud and illegality is insufficient to alter the results of the election, the original slate of electors would remain valid. BIDEN WINS." Memo ¶ III.d.i (emphasis in original). "If, on the other hand, the investigation proves to the satisfaction of the legislature that there was sufficient fraud and illegality to affect the results of the election, the Legislature certifies the Trump electors. Upon reconvening the Joint Session of Congress, those votes are counted and TRUMP WINS." Memo ¶ III.d.ii. In other words, the purpose of the delay recommendation was to ensure that, after accounting for illegal or fraudulent votes, the rightful winner of the election was properly certified, therefore upholding rather than depriving the voters of those states of their right to have their legal votes in the 2020 election determine the states' electoral votes. The purpose was to uphold the states' election laws and the Constitution's assignment of authority to the state legislatures to adopt them in the face of admitted violations of those laws by state and local election officials. Respondent DENIES that he "dishonestly conspired to obstruct the Joint Session of Congress on January 6, 2021, in violation 18 U.S.C. § 371." As Section 16 of the Electoral Count Act expressly acknowledges, "no recess is permitted unless a question shall have arisen in regard to counting any such votes...." 3 U.S.C. § 16 (emphasis added). In light of reports of illegality and fraud in the conduct of the election that had been transmitted to Vice President Pence from more than a hundred state legislators, it was certainly the case that "a question [had] arisen in regard to the counting" of electoral votes. See, e.g., Letter to Vice President Pence of January 5, 2021 (signed by 91 legislators from the contested states of Arizona, Georgia, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin) ("The 2020 election witnessed an unprecedented and admitted defiance of state law and procedural irregularities raising questions about the validity of hundreds of thousands of ballots in our respective states."); id. COUNT TWO

Case No. 21-O-11801 Business and Professions Code section 6068(d) [Seeking to Mislead a Court]

33. On or about December 7, 2020, the State of Texas filed a Motion for Leave to File Bill of Complaint in the United States Supreme Court, initiating the lawsuit Texas v. Pennsylvania, 141 S. Ct. 1230 (2020), against Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan, and Wisconsin ("Defendant States"), whose electors were pledged to vote for Joe Biden in the 2020 presidential election. The lawsuit "challeng[ed]" the Defendant States' "administration of the 2020 presidential election." It claimed that "government officials in the defendant states of Georgia, Michigan, and Wisconsin, and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania" had "[u]s[ed] the COVID- 19 pandemic as a justification" to "usurp their legislatures' authority and unconstitutionally revised their state's election statutes."

Respondent ADMITS the allegations in Paragraph 33 of the NDC.

- 34. The lawsuit made three primary allegations:
- a) First, it alleged "[n]on-legislative actors' purported amendments to States' duly enacted election laws, in violation of the Electors Clause's vesting State legislatures with plenary authority regarding the appointment of presidential electors."
- b) Second, it alleged "[i]ntrastate differences in the treatment of voters, with more favorable [treatment] allotted to voters – whether lawful or unlawful – in areas administered by local government under Democrat control and with populations with higher ratios of Democrat voters than other areas of Defendant States."

c) Third, it alleged "[t]he appearance of voting irregularities in the Defendant States that would be consistent with the unconstitutional relaxation of ballot-integrity protections in those States' election laws."

Respondent ADMITS the allegations in Paragraph 34 of the NDC.

35. The lawsuit sought an order from the Supreme Court to "enjoin the use of unlawful election results without review and ratification by the Defendant States' legislatures and remand to the Defendant States' respective legislatures to appoint Presidential Electors in a manner consistent with the Electors Clause and pursuant to 3 U.S.C. § 2."

Respondent ADMITS the allegations in Paragraph 35 of the NDC.

- 36. Texas' Motion for Leave to File Bill of Complaint made numerous specific factual allegations, including the following:
 - a) Citing "rampant lawlessness arising out of Defendant States' unconstitutional acts," the lawsuit asserted that "[t]aken together, these flaws affect an outcome- determinative numbers of popular votes in a group of States that cast outcome- determinative numbers of electoral votes."
 - b) "Statewide election officials and local election officials in Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties, aware of the historical Democrat advantage in those counties, violated Pennsylvania's election code and adopted the differential standards favoring voters in Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties with the intent to favor former Vice President Biden."
 - c) "The probability of former Vice President Biden winning the popular vote in the four Defendant States—Georgia, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin—independently given President Trump's early lead in those States as of 3 a.m. on November 4, 2020, is less than one in a quadrillion, or 1 in 271,000,000,000,000,000. For former Vice President Biden to win these four States collectively, the odds of that event happening decrease to less than one in a quadrillion to the fourth power (i.e., 1 in 1,000,000,000,000,0004)."

d) "The same less than one in a quadrillion statistical improbability of Mr. Biden winning the popular vote in the four Defendant States—Georgia, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin— independently exists when Mr. Biden's performance in each of those Defendant States is compared to former Secretary of State Hilary Clinton's performance in the 2016 general election and President Trump's performance in the 2016 and 2020 general elections. Again, the statistical improbability of Mr. Biden winning the popular vote in these four States collectively is 1 in 1,000,000,000,000,0004."

Respondent ADMITS that the Original Action filed by Texas made the factual allegations described in Paragraph 36 of the NDC.

37. On or about December 9, 2020, respondent filed in the Supreme Court a motion on behalf of President Donald Trump to intervene in Texas v. Pennsylvania in his capacity as a candidate for re-election and a proposed Bill of Complaint, thereby attempting to join the case as a plaintiff. In his motion, respondent expressly adopted the allegations contained in the Motion for Leave to File Bill of Complaint filed by Texas on December 7, 2020.

Respondent ADMITS that the Motion to Intervene incorporated by reference many of the allegations contained in Texas's Bill of Complaint.

38. Respondent knew that the factual allegations in the motion filed by Texas were false and misleading, in that, as respondent knew at the time:

- a) There was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely of fraud in any state election in sufficient numbers that could have affected the outcome of the election.
- b) There was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely that election officials in Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties had acted with the intent to favor Biden in the election through the alleged violations of election codes or adoptions of differential standards, or that the alleged violations of election codes or adoptions of differential standards "affect[ed] an outcome-determinative numbers of popular votes."
- c) Texas' claims that the odds of Biden winning the popular vote in the Defendant States were less than one in a quadrillion were based on statistical analysis that no reasonable expert on statistical analysis would agree with. The claim was supported by a declaration from Charles Cicchetti, who has a Ph.D. in economics. Experts in statistics were highly critical of Cicchetti's statistical analysis and found that he based his analysis on erroneous assumptions about the ways that votes are distributed among geographic regions, demographics, and voting methods.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 38 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, duplicative, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that the factual allegations in the motion filed by Texas were false, or that he knew that the factual allegations made in that motion were false. Respondent DENIES the allegation in subparagraph (a) that there was "no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely of fraud in any state election in sufficient numbers that could have affected the outcome of the election." As set out in the response to Paragraph 11 above, there was ample evidence of fraud and illegality in sufficient quantity to have affected the outcome of the election. There was, in addition, statistical evidence of significant vote spikes in Georgia, Pennsylvania, and Michigan suggesting likely ballot stuffing. See,

Summary of Testimony from December 3, 2020 Hearing, p. 12.³⁶ Subsequent investigations, such as that conducted by former Wisconsin Supreme Court Justice Gableman at the behest of the Wisconsin Legislature, have confirmed that illegality and fraud in the conduct of the election affected more ballots than the reported margin of victory. See Office of the Special Counsel, Second Interim Investigative Report On the Apparatus and Procedures of the Wisconsin Elections System (March 1, 2022), at 2 ("it is clear that Wisconsin election officials" unlawful conduct in the 2020 Presidential election casts grave doubt on Wisconsin's 2020 Presidential election certification."); id. at 81-95 (describing illegality and extensive fraud in harvesting ballots from nursing homes and concluding: "the fact that tens of thousands of illegal ballots from these facilities were counted casts doubt on the 2020 Presidential election result.") An audit conducted in Arizona under the authority of that State's Legislature likewise found tens of thousands of ballots of dubious legality—well more than the 10,457-vote margin in that state.

Respondent DENIES the allegation in subparagraph (b) that "There was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely that election officials in Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties had acted with the intent to favor Biden in the election through the alleged violations of election codes or adoptions of differential standards." There is documented evidence that election officials in Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties provided advance notice of defective mail-in and absentee ballots to Democrat party officials, in violation of Pennsylvania law, 25 P.S. § 3146.8. Those allegations were raised in the complaint filed in Donald J. Trump for President, Inc. v. Boockvar, No. 4:20-cv-02078, Complaint ¶¶ 128-137 (M.D. Pa. 2020); the case was ultimately dismissed for lack of standing without addressing the merits of the allegations. Id., Memorandum Opinion (Dkt. #202) and Order (Dkt. #203) (M.D. Pa. Respondent DENIES the allegation in subparagraph (b) that there was no evidence to support the claim made in the Texas Bill of Complaint "that the alleged violations of election codes or adoptions of differential standards 'affect[ed] an outcome-determinative numbers of popular votes." There were numerous violations of state law that, cumulatively, affected well more than the 81,660 vote margin in Pennsylvania. In his report on election irregularities, for example, Representative Ryan identified 58,221 absentee or mail-in ballots that were received back on or before the day state records indicated they were mailed out, and another 51,200 ballots received back the day after they were mailed out. The 109,421 total alone exceeds the 81,660 vote margin. The Secretary of State's elimination of signature verification contrary to Pennsylvania law, e.g., 25 P.S. § 3146.8(g), which caused or at least contributed to a dramatic decline (from 4.45% in 2018 to .28% in 2020) in the number of ballots that were disqualified because the signatures did not match the signatures on file (or, in other words, were illegally signed by someone other than the registered voter), affected more than 2.6 million ballots, of which nearly 60,000 would likely have been disqualified using historic disqualification rates when signature verification was conducted. absentee and mail-in ballots in Bucks County, 8,329 in Philadelphia County, and 2,349 in Allegheny County that were not "filled in, signed, and dated," as required by Pennsylvania law, 25 P.S. §§ 3146.6(a), were nonetheless counted.³⁸ In addition, the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, at the request of the Secretary of State, extended the statutory deadline for the receipt of absentee and mail-in ballots, thereby allowing somewhere between 10,000 (as acknowledged by the Secretary) and 71,893 (as alleged by Trump campaign officials) latereceived ballots to be counted in violation of Pennsylvania law, 25 P.S. §§ 3146.6(c), ³⁸ Despite the clear statutory text, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania held that the statute did not require that a voter actually "fill in, sign, and date" the ballot certification envelope. In re: Canvass of Absentee and Mail-in Ballots of November 3, 2020 General Election, 241 A.3d 1058 (Pa. 2020). A petition for writ of certiorari, filed in the Supreme Court of the United States, remained pending until it was denied on Feb. 22, 2021. *Donald J. Trump for President, Inc. v. 3150.16(c).³⁹ While a petition for writ of certiorari challenging that decision was pending, three Justices of the Supreme Court noted that the Pennsylvania Court's decree "squarely alters an important statutory provision enacted by the Pennsylvania Legislature pursuant to its authority under the Constitution of the United States to make rules governing the conduct of elections for federal office," and that "there is a strong likelihood that the State Supreme Court decision violates the Federal Constitution." Republican Party of Pennsylvania v. Degraffenreid, No. 20-542, Order Denying Motion to Expedite, Statement of Justice Alito (joined by Justices Thomas and Gorsuch) (Oct. 28, 2020). Violations of law in other swing states similarly impacted more votes than the margins in those states. In Georgia, for example, the loosening of that state's statutory signature verification process caused or at least contributed to a dramatic decline in the disqualification rate of absentee ballots, from 6.42% in 2016 to .36% in 2020. Because Biden received a much greater proportion of absentee ballots than Trump, Dr. Charles Cicchetti, the expert on whose statistical analysis Texas relied, opined that that issue alone would have produced a net gain for Trump of 25,587 votes – or more than double the 11,799 vote margin in the state. Decl. of Charles J.

Cicchetti, Ph.D., ¶¶ 22-28, Appendix, Motion for Expedited Consideration, Texas v. Pennsylvania, No. 22O155 (S.Ct., filed Dec. 7, 2020).

Respondent DENIES the allegation in subparagraph (c) that "no reasonable expert on statistical analysis would agree with" the expert opinion offered by Dr. Charles Cicchetti. Disputes among experts are commonplace in litigation, and Respondent DENIES that he had any basis for knowing whether Dr. Chechetti's expert opinion was incorrect. "Although attorneys may not present evidence they know to be false or assist in perpetrating known frauds on the court, they may ethically present evidence that they suspect, but do not personally know, is false. ... [A]s long as counsel has no specific undisclosed factual knowledge of its falsity, it does not raise an ethical problem." People v. Riel, 22 Cal. 4th 1153, 1217 (2000) (citing People v. Gordon, supra, 10 Cal.3d 460, 472-474 (1973)); see also Marijanovic v. Gray York, 137 Cal.App.4th 1262, 1273 (2006) ("A litigant or attorney who possesses competent evidence to substantiate a legally cognizable claim for relief does not act tortiously by bringing the claim, even if also aware of evidence that will weigh against the claim.").

39. By expressly adopting these false and misleading statements and presenting them to the Supreme Court as a basis of relief for Trump, respondent sought to mislead the Supreme Court by an artifice or false statement of fact or law, in willful violation of Business and Professions Code, section 6068(d).

Respondent DENIES that the statements contained in the Texas Bill of Complaint were false and misleading, or that he knew they were false and misleading.

Respondent ADMITS or DENIES the allegations in paragraphs 8 through 10 as set out above.

41. On or about December 23, 2020, in the two-page memo that respondent wrote and sent to an attorney and strategic advisor to Trump's 2020 presidential campaign, with the intent of providing legal advice to Trump and Pence, respondent asserted that seven states that had voted for Biden (Arizona, Georgia, Michigan, Pennsylvania Nevada, New Mexico, and Wisconsin) "have transmitted dual slates of electors to the President of the Senate." Respondent knew that this assertion was false and misleading in that, as respondent knew at the time:

- a) Pursuant to 3 U.S.C. § 6, the governor of each of those states had submitted a certificate of ascertainment naming the Biden electors, not Trump electors;
- b) No other state official of any of those states had submitted a purported certificate of ascertainment naming Trump electors; and
- c) As a result, no legal authority on behalf of any state had taken any action to support the contention that Trump electors were the legitimate electors for any of the seven states.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 41 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that he prepared the 2-page memo with the "intent of providing legal advice to Trump and Vice-President Michael Pence." As he has noted to the Bar investigators and elsewhere, the 2-page memo was but a preliminary draft of a portion of larger memo outlining all the various scenarios that were being discussed in public discourse. Respondent ADMITS that Biden had been declared the winner in the seven listed states, but DENIES that those declarations, like the similar declarations that had been made certifying Nixon's electors in Hawaii in 1960, were conclusive, as litigation was still pending at the time in several of the contested states.

42. By including this false and misleading assertion as a basis for the alternative legal strategies provided in the two-page memo, respondent committed an act involving moral turpitude, dishonesty, and corruption in willful violation of Business and Professions Code section 6106.

Respondent DENIES that the assertion was false and misleading. The Trump electors from the seven contested had in fact met and cast contingent electoral votes, just as the electors for Senator Kennedy had done in Hawaii in 1960. Respondent did not assert that the Trump electoral votes had been certified by the respective state governors or any other state official.

43. A violation of section 6106 may result from intentional conduct or grossly negligent conduct. Respondent is charged with committing intentional misrepresentation. However, should the evidence at trial demonstrate that respondent committed misrepresentation as a result of gross negligence, respondent must still be found culpable of violating section 6106 because misrepresentation through gross negligence is a lesser included offense of intentional misrepresentation.

Respondent DENIES that the assertion was false and misleading, or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing that it was false and misleading.

COUNT FOUR

Case No. 21-O-11801 Business and Professions Code section 6068(d) [Seeking to Mislead a Court]

44. On or about December 31, 2020, respondent, as co-counsel, filed in the Northern District of Georgia a Verified Complaint for Emergency Injunctive and Declaratory Relief on behalf of President Donald Trump in Trump v. Kemp, No. 20-CV-5310 (motion for expedited declaratory and injunctive relief denied, 511 F. Supp. 3d 1325 (NDGA, Jan. 5, 2021)). The complaint requested an emergency injunction to de-certify Georgia's election results, alleging that Georgia's manner of conducting the election violated the Electors Clause.

Respondent ADMITS the allegations in paragraph 44 of the NDC.

- 45. The Complaint alleged that various aspects of the administration of Georgia's election were fraudulent or unlawful. The alleged fraudulent or unlawful actions included:
 - a) Georgia election officials allowed unqualified individuals to register and vote, allowed convicted felons still serving their sentence to vote, allowed underaged individuals to register and then vote, allowed unregistered or late registered individuals to vote, allowed individuals to vote who had moved across county lines, allowed individuals to vote who had registered at a P.O. Box, church, or courthouse rather than their residence, and accepted votes cast by deceased individuals.
 - b) Fulton County election officials "remove[d] suitcases of ballots from under a table where they had been hidden, and processed those ballots without open viewing by the public in violation of [state law]."

Respondent ADMITS that the allegations identified in paragraph 45 of the NDC were included in the Trump v. Kemp Complaint.

- 46. Respondent knew that these allegations regarding the administration of Georgia's election were false and misleading, in that, as respondent knew at the time:
 - There was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely that the alleged irregularities in Georgia, even collectively, occurred in sufficient number as to affect the outcome of the election in Georgia, as the margin of votes for Biden in Georgia was over 11,000 votes, and there was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely that the allegedly fraudulent or unlawful actions in the administration of Georgia's election approached that margin.
 - b) Fulton County election officials did not remove a suitcase of hidden ballots from under a table out of view of election observers and fraudulently process the ballots. In fact, video evidence established that the ballots at issue were in a room filled with people including election monitors, until the boxes—not suitcases— containing the ballots were placed under a table in preparation for the poll watchers to leave for the evening. Those boxes were reopened and their contents retrieved and scanned before poll watchers left when the state official monitor intervened, instructing the workers that they should remain to tabulate the votes. Furthermore, based upon the claim of fraudulent conduct, the Georgia Secretary of State conducted an investigation and determined that the video evidence did not show secreting and counting of illegal ballots, and there was no evidence of improper activity.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 46 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that the allegations identified in paragraph 45 of the NDC were false and misleading, or that he knew them to be false and misleading at the time. On the contrary, the allegations were supported by sworn affidavits and expert analysis submitted in conjunction with the complaint filed in Trump v. Raffensperger, No. 2020CV343255 (Fulton Cnty.

Super. Ct., filed Dec. 4, 2020), which was attached to the Trump v. Kemp complaint and incorporated by reference. That complaint and its accompanying affidavits and expert analyses provided evidence of more than 100,000 ballots that were cast and counted in the Georgia election, well over the 11,779 vote margin. Respondent therefore DENIES the allegation in subparagraph (a) that there was "no evidence ... that the alleged irregularities in Georgia, even collectively, occurred in sufficient number as to affect the outcome of the election in Georgia." That claim is demonstrably false, and because Respondent had identified that evidence to the bar examiners during the investigative phase, the false statement was made knowingly, in violation of Business and Professions Code, section 6068(d).

Respondent DENIES that the allegations in subparagraph (b) were false and misleading, or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing at the time that they were false and misleading. There was video evidence of ballots being scanned multiple times at the State Farm Arena in Atlanta, Georgia, after election observers were advised to go home because counting had been halted for the evening. 48. The allegations in paragraph 11 above are incorporated here by reference.

Respondent incorporates his response to paragraph 11 of the NDC here by reference.

49. On or about January 2, 2021, respondent appeared on the "Bannon's War Room" radio program, during which he was interviewed by program host Steve Bannon. According to Bannon, the radio program had tens of millions of listeners. Respondent stated that there was "massive evidence" of fraud involving absentee ballots in the November 3, 2020 presidential election, "most egregiously in Georgia and Pennsylvania and Wisconsin." Respondent further stated that there had been "more than enough" absentee ballot fraud "to have affected the outcome of the election." Respondent made these statements with the intent to encourage the audience listening to the radio program and the general public to question the legitimacy of the election results.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 49 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, repetitive, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent has no knowledge about, and therefore DENIES, the claim regarding the number of listeners to Steve Bannon's radio program. Respondent ADMITS that he made the statements attributed to him. Respondent ADMITS that American Citizens have the right to question illegality and fraud in the conduct of their elections, and that his intent in making those statements was to expose such illegality and fraud, as was his constitutional right under the First Amendment.

50. Respondent knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that these allegations regarding absentee ballot fraud were false and misleading, as respondent knew at that time that there was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely of absentee ballot fraud in any state in sufficient numbers that could have affected the outcome of the election.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 50 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, repetitive, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that his statements were false or misleading, or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing that they were false or misleading.

- There had been "outright fraud" through "electronic manipulation of voting tabulation machines."
- b) There were "dual slates of electors from 7 states," because the Trump electors in Arizona, Georgia, Michigan, Nevada, New Mexico, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin had met on December 14, 2020, cast their electoral votes for Trump, and transmitted those votes to Pence.
- c) The State of Michigan "[m]ailed out absentee ballots to every registered voter, contrary to statutory requirement that voter apply for absentee ballots."
- d) "[T]his Election was Stolen by a strategic Democrat plan to systematically flout existing election laws for partisan advantage."

Respondent ADMITS that he sent a six-page memo to an attorney/strategic advisor outlining numerous scenarios for the counting of electoral votes during the joint session of Congress on January 6, 2021. Respondent DENIES that the memo advised the adoption of any particular scenario. Respondent ADMITS that the statements quoted in paragraph 54 of the NDC are contained in the six-page memo.

- 55. Respondent knew that these statements were false and misleading, in that, as respondent knew at the time:
 - a) There was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely of fraud through electronic manipulation of voting tabulation machines. Respondent knew that on or about November 12, 2020, the Elections Infrastructure Government Coordinating Council and the Election Infrastructure Sector Coordinating Executive Committees issued a joint statement which stated that "The 2020 presidential election was the most secure in American history" and "there was no evidence that any voting system deleted or lost votes, changed votes, or was in any way compromised." evidence emerged after November 12, 2020, that there was any electronic manipulation of voting tabulation.

- b) No states had submitted legitimate, competing slates of electors. The governors of Arizona, Georgia, Michigan, Pennsylvania Nevada, New Mexico, and Wisconsin had each submitted a certificate of ascertainment pursuant to 3 U.S.C. § 6 naming the Biden electors, not Trump electors. No other state official of any of those states had submitted a purported certificate of ascertainment naming the Trump electors, and no legal authority on behalf of any state had taken any action to support the contention that the Trump electors were the legitimate electors for any of the seven states.
- The State of Michigan mailed to every registered voter applications to vote by mail, not absentee ballots. That action did not violate the state's prohibition on sending absentee ballots without a prior request. Moreover, there was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely that illegal votes by absentee ballots in Michigan had affected the outcome of the election.
- d) There was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely that the election was "stolen" or that the Democratic Party planned to "systematically flout existing election laws for partisan advantage."

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 55 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, repetitive, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that his statements were false and misleading, or that he knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that they were false and misleading.

Respondent DENIES the allegations in subparagraph (a) for the reasons set out in his response to paragraph 23 above, which he incorporates here by reference.

the NDC acknowledges in paragraph 54(b), was that there were "dual slates of electors from 7 states." Respondent DENIES that the claim in the memo regarding dual slates of electors from 7 states was false and misleading, or that Respondent knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing it to be false and misleading. The statement was in fact true, just as there were "dual slates of electors" from Hawaii in 1960 – the Vice President Nixon electors who had been certified as victors, and the Senator Kennedy electors, both sets of which met on the designated day in December 1960, cast their electoral votes, and transmitted those votes to the President of the Senate. Respondent ADMITS that the Biden electors had been certified by the respective Governors, just as the Nixon electors had been certified by Hawaii's Governor in 1960. Respondent ADMITS that, at the time the memo was drafted, no other state authority had certified the Trump electors, just as no other state authority had certified the Kennedy electors at the time those electors met in December and cast their electoral votes.

Respondent ADMITS the allegation in subparagraph (c) that the Michigan Secretary of State mailed absentee ballot applications rather than absentee ballots to every voter in the state, and that the allegation was incorrectly stated in the six-page memo. Respondent DENIES that the mistake was willful. Respondent DENIES that, at the time he began preparing his memo, the Secretary's action did not violate the state's prohibition on sending absentee ballots without a prior request. Michigan law provides that applications for absentee ballots may be made (a) by a written request signed by the voter; (b) On an absent voter application form provided for that purpose by the clerk of the city or township; or (c) On a federal postcard application. Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. § 168.759. There is no explicit provision in the law for the Secretary of State to provide the application forms or mail them to every voter in the State, and the Michigan Courts had held that even county clerks had no authority to send absentee ballot applications unsolicited. Taylor v. Currie, 277 Mich. App. 85, 97, 743 N.W.2d The Secretary's action was challenged in a Senate Elections 571, 578 (2007).

Jocelyn Benson's absentee ballot mailings illegal, Bridge Michigan (June 24, 2020).⁴² The action was also challenged in litigation. An intermediate court of appeals had held that the holding in Taylor dealt with the authority of county clerks and therefore did not control the issue of the Secretary of State's authority. Davis v. Sec'y of State, 333 Mich. App. 588, 601, 963 N.W.2d 653, 660 (Sept. 16, 2020). Over a strong dissent, which found that the statutory language unambiguously does not support that the Secretary had the authority to distribute unsolicited applications for absentee ballots, id. 963 N.W.2d at 664 (Meter, J., dissenting in part), the Court held that the Secretary had "inherent authority" to send unsolicited applications to all registered voters. Id. at 660 (majority opinion). An appeal of that decision to the Michigan Supreme Court was pending when Respondent began preparing his memo, and although the appeal was denied six days before Eastman's memo was finalized (a decision of which Dr. Eastman was unaware at the time), Justice Viviano dissented from that denial, contending that the Court should have agreed to hear the case because Judge Meter's partial dissent concluding that the Secretary had "exceeded her authority" "raise[d] a number of issues that this Court should address." Davis v. Sec'y of State, 506 Mich. 1040, 951 N.W.2d 911 (2020). Respondent DENIES that he ever claimed, in the memo or otherwise, that the Secretary's unsolicited mailing of absentee ballot applications to every registered voter in the state had, standing alone, affected the outcome of the election.

'systematically flout existing election laws for partisan advantage." In fact, there was significant evidence of that claim at the time, including evidence in Pennsylvania of election officials providing advance notice of defective mail-in ballots to Democrat operatives before the law allowed; an apparently collusive suit between a Democrat-leaning NGO and the Democrat Secretary of State in Pennsylvania to eliminate signature verification; coordination between the Biden campaign and Democrat county election officials of an illegal "human drop box" ballot harvesting effort in Wisconsin dubbed "Democracy in the Park," see Trump v. Biden, 951 N.W.2d 568, 590 (Dec. 14, 2020) (Roggensack, J., dissenting, 43 joined by) (noting that "the 17,271 ballots that were collected in Madison parks did not comply with the statutes"); M. D. Kittle, Is Biden sponsoring Madison city voter event?, Empower Wisconsin (Sept. 25, 2020).44 These and other efforts were subsequently described in an important, eye-opening Time Magazine article by Molly Ball as a "conspiracy" by leftist groups and anti-Trump Republicans. Headed by Mike Podhorzer, long-time Democrat activist and senior advisor to the President of the AFL-CIO, one of the Democrat parties strongest allies, Ball described the "conspiracy" as "a well-funded cabal of powerful people, ranging across industries and ideologies, working together behind the scenes to influence perceptions, change rules and laws, steer media coverage and control the flow of information," not to "rig" the election, they claimed, but to "fortify" it against Trump and his supposed "assault on democracy." in Washington, D.C., respondent stated that Dominion electronic voting machines had fraudulently manipulated the election results during the November 3, 2020, presidential election and during the January 5, 2021, run-off election in Georgia for its two Senate seats. Respondent stated that "[t]hey" put ballots "in a secret folder in the machines, sitting there waiting until they know how many they need," and that after the polls closed, "unvoted ballots" were matched with "an unvoted voter" to fraudulently change the election totals in favor of Joe Biden and the Democratic candidates in the Georgia runoff election. Respondent further stated that analysis of the vote percentages showed that "they were unloading the ballots from that secret folder, matching them—matching them to the unvoted voter and voila we have enough votes to barely get over the finish line."

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 59 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, repetitive, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent ADMITS that he spoke at a rally on the Ellipse of the National Mall on January 6, 2021, in the exercise of his constitutionally-protected First Amendment rights to Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Association, and Right to Petition the Government for Redress of Grievances. Case No. 21-O-11801 Business and Professions Code section 6106 [Moral Turpitude – Misrepresentation]

- 68. On or about January 18, 2021, the American Mind, a publication of the Claremont Institute, published an article written by respondent regarding the November 3, 2020, presidential election entitled "Setting the Record Straight on the POTUS 'Ask'." In the article, respondent stated that illegal or fraudulent conduct had occurred during the election, including:
 - a) "in Fulton County, Georgia, where suitcases of ballots were pulled from under the table after election observers had been sent home for the night;"
 - b) "in parts of Wayne County (Detroit), Michigan, where there are more absentee votes cast than had been requested;" and
 - c) "in Antrim County, Michigan, where votes were electronically flipped from Trump to Biden."

Respondent ADMITS that, in his American Mind article (which is a publication protected by the First Amendment's Speech and Press Clauses), he wrote that "A large portion of the American citizenry believes the illegal actions by partisan election officials in a few states have thrown the election. They saw it with their own eyes," and that he then gave a litary of examples of fraud or illegality, including the three cited in Paragraph 68 examples that he wrote are "what the American people know, or strongly suspect."

- 69. Respondent knew that these statements were false and misleading in that, as respondent knew at the time:
 - a) Fulton County election officials did not remove a suitcase of hidden ballots from under a table out of view of election observers and fraudulently process the ballots. In fact, video evidence established that the ballots at issue were in a room filled with people including election monitors, until the boxes—not suitcases— containing the ballots were placed under a table in preparation for the poll watchers to leave for the evening. Those boxes were reopened and their contents retrieved and scanned before poll watchers left when the state official monitor intervened, instructing the workers that they should remain to tabulate the votes. Furthermore, based upon the claim of fraudulent conduct, the Georgia Secretary of State conducted an investigation and determined that the video evidence did not show secreting and counting of illegal ballots, and there was no evidence of improper activity.

- b) The State of Michigan mailed to every registered voter applications to vote by mail, not absentee ballots. That action did not violate the state's prohibition on sending absentee ballots without a prior request. Furthermore, while Trump supporters made public claims that hundreds of thousands of absentee ballots were sent to voters without a prior request, the Michigan Senate Oversight Committee found that that "no evidence [was] presented to the Committee" supporting that claim, and it appeared that many who claimed to have received an unsolicited ballot actually received an absentee-ballot application, which is legal under Michigan law. There was also no evidence that election workers in Wayne County ran the same ballots through a tabulator multiple times. Moreover, there was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely that illegal votes by absentee ballots in Michigan had affected the outcome of the election.
- There was no evidence upon which a reasonable attorney would rely that votes were "electronically flipped from Trump to Biden" in Antrim County, Michigan.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 69 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that the statements contained in his American Mind article were false and misleading, or that he knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, them to be false and misleading at the time.

Respondent OBJECTS to the allegations in subparagraph (a) as duplicative of those contained in Paragraph 46(b), and incorporates his response to Paragraph 46(b) here by reference.

70. By making these statements, when respondent knew they were false and misleading, and with the intent to encourage the general public to question the legitimacy of the election results, respondent committed an act involving moral turpitude, dishonesty, and corruption in willful violation of Business and Professions Code section 6106.

Respondent DENIES that his statements were false and misleading, or that he knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that they were false and misleading. Respondent ADMITS that American Citizens have the right to question illegality and fraud in the conduct of their elections, and that his intent in making those statements was to expose such illegality and fraud, as was his constitutional right under the First Amendment. Respondent DENIES that highlighting illegality and fraud in the conduct of an election, particularly in a speech protected by the First Amendment, constitutes an act involving moral turpitude, dishonesty, and corruption in violation of Business and Professions Code section 6106, willful or otherwise.

71. A violation of section 6106 may result from intentional conduct or grossly negligent conduct. Respondent is charged with committing intentional misrepresentation. However, should the evidence at trial demonstrate that respondent committed misrepresentation as a result of gross negligence, respondent must still be found culpable of violating section 6106 because misrepresentation through gross negligence is a lesser included offense of intentional misrepresentation.

Respondent DENIES that his statements in the American Mind article—an article that is constitutionally protected by the First Amendment's Speech and Press Clauses—were false and misleading, or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing them to be false and misleading at the time they were made.

72. The allegations in paragraphs 8 through 31 above are incorporated by reference.

Respondent incorporates by reference his responses to paragraphs 8 through 31.

- 73. Between on or about December 23, 2020, and on or about January 6, 2021, respondent repeatedly proposed and sought to encourage that Pence exercise unilateral authority to disregard the electoral votes of certain states or delay the counting of electoral votes. In particular:
 - a) In the December 23, 2020, two-page memo, respondent asserted that "the Constitution assigns th[e] power" to resolve disputes regarding electoral votes "to the Vice President as the ultimate arbiter" and that Pence therefore could and should take action to disregard the electoral votes of seven states that had voted for Biden but had purportedly submitted dual slates of electors "without asking for permission either from a vote of the joint session or from the Court";
 - b) In the January 3, 2021, six-page memo, respondent asserted that Pence, as the "ultimate arbiter," had legal authority to take various actions, including "determin[ing] on his own which [slate of electors] is valid" or adjourn[ing] the joint session of Congress," and as a result could unilaterally count no electors for each of seven states that had purportedly submitted dual slates of electors, unilaterally send the election to the House of Representatives under the procedures established by the Twelfth Amendment, or unilaterally adjourn the Joint Session without counting the electoral votes in the hope that Republican legislatures in the seven state would later appoint or certify a slate of Trump electors;

- c) In an email to Jacob sent at approximately 6:09 pm on January 6, 2021, approximately one-half hour after Capitol Police had cleared and secured the Capital building of protestors and Congressional leaders had announced that they would proceed with counting the electoral votes, respondent stated that "adjourn[ing] to allow the state legislatures to continue their work" was the "most prudent course"; and
- d) In an email to Jacob sent at approximately 11:44 p.m. on January 6, 2021, shortly after the House and Senate resumed the Joint Session to count electoral votes, respondent stated, "I implore you to consider one more relatively minor violation [of the law] and adjourn for 10 days."

Respondent ADMITS that the language quoted in subparagraph (a) is contained in the draft two-page memo, which was a draft component of the more complete, six-page memo, but he DENIES that the memo was provided to Vice President Pence or members of Pence's staff.

Respondent ADMITS that the phrases quoted in subparagraph (b) are among the nine scenarios discussed in the six-page memo, but he DENIES that the memo advocates for (rather than merely describes) any particular scenario.

Respondent ADMITS that the language quoted in subparagraph (c) is contained in the email he sent to Mr. Jacob at approximately 6:09 pm EST on January 6, 2021. Respondent has no direct knowledge regarding the timing of when Capitol Police had cleared and secured the Capitol building and therefore DENIES that allegation in subparagraph (c).

Respondent ADMITS that the quoted language in subparagraph (d), except for the bracketed portion, is contained in his email to Mr. Jacob of approximately 11:44 pm EST on January 6, 2021. Respondent ADMITS that Mr. Jacob was of the view that an adjournment would violate the Electoral Count Act. Respondent DENIES that he agrees with that assessment. Section 16 of the Electoral Count Act, 3 U.S.C. § 16, expressly distinguishes between the Joint Session of Congress being "dissolved" and "recess[ed]." The former is prohibited by the Act "until the count of electoral votes shall be completed and the result declared," and Respondent never advised that the Joint Session should be "dissolved." A "recess" is likewise prohibited "unless a question shall have arisen in regard to counting any such votes," which was precisely the situation that presented itself, serious questions having been raised regarding the counting of electoral votes from several states. Moreover, even if the Electoral Count Act prohibited the Vice President from acceding to requests from more than a hundred state legislators for a brief delay in the proceedings to allow time for further investigation of the impact that illegality and fraud had on the election results, Respondent DENIES that a statute can interfere with powers given directly by the Constitution to the Vice President to "open" electoral certificates and, implicitly, to make a judgement about whether further investigation was warranted to assess the validity of electoral certificates in the face of what the Vice President himself acknowledged was "significant allegations of voting irregularities and numerous instances of officials setting aside state election law." See, e.g., Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch (5 U.S.) 137, 177 (1803) ("an act of the legislature, repugnant to the constitution, is void.").

74. Respondent knew that the courses of action he proposed to Pence were contrary to and unsupported by the historical record, contrary to and unsupported by established legal authority and precedent, including the Electoral Count Act and the Twelfth Amendment, and based on the false premise that the seven states at issue had transmitted alternate slates of electors. Respondent's legal theory to support his proposed courses of action was based on misinterpreted historical sources, misinterpreted law review articles, and law review articles which he knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, were themselves fundamentally flawed, such that no reasonable attorney with expertise in constitutional or election law would conclude that Pence was legally authorized to take the actions that respondent proposed. Moreover, in the course of an email exchange with another individual in early October 2020, respondent himself had recognized that these courses of action were improper. In that earlier email exchange, respondent stated that he he did not agree that Pence, who serves as President of the Senate, could determine which votes to count on January 6, 2021, because "3 U.S.C. § 12 says merely that [the President of the Senate] is the presiding officer, and then it spells out specific procedures, presumptions, and default rules for which slates will be counted. Nowhere does it suggest that the President of the Senate gets to make the determination on his own. § 15 doesn't, either." In that earlier email exchange, respondent further stated that he did not agree that, in the event of a dispute between a state legislature and the state's governor or popular vote regarding the appointment of electors, the legislature determines the appointment of electors, stating "I don't think [Article II] entitles the Legislature to change the rules after the election and appoint a different slate of electors in a manner different than what was in place on election day. And 3 U.S.C. § 15 gives dispositive weight to the slate of electors that was certified by the Governor in accord with 3 U.S.C. § 5."

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 75 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that he proposed any particular course of action in the six-page memo (of which the two-page memo was a draft component). Respondent DENIES that his legal analysis was "primarily based on law review articles." It was instead based both on numerous law review articles and the historical examples and extensive legislative debates references in those articles, which Respondent independently reviewed. Respondent DENIES that the scenario of a brief delay to allow for investigation of the impact of illegality and fraud on the election was without historical precedent. In fact, a lengthy delay in the counting of electoral votes occurred in 1877 following the contested Hayes-Tilden election of 1876. Respondent DENIES that the contention that the Vice President had authority to assess the validity of contested electoral votes was without historical precedent. In fact, Vice President Adams in 1797, Vice President Jefferson in 1801, and Vice President Nixon in 1961 had all exercised such authority. The President Pro Tem of the Senate (the office of Vice President being vacant at the time) also exercised such authority in 1857 in determining to count votes from Wisconsin that had not been cast on the "uniform" date specified by Congress.

Moreover, at approximately 12:14 p.m. on January 6, 2021, Jacob sent an email to respondent which stated, "I just don't in the end believe that there is a single Justice on the United States Supreme Court, or a single judge on any of our Courts of Appeals, who is as 'broad minded' as you when it comes to the irrelevance of statutes enacted by the United States Congress, and followed without exception for more than 130 years." The email closed by stating that Jacob "ha[d] run down every legal trail placed before me to its conclusion, and I respectfully conclude that as a legal framework, it is a results oriented position that you would never support if attempted by the opposition, and essentially entirely made up." Nevertheless, in subsequent emails sent to Jacob on January 6, 2021, at approximately 6:09 pm and 11:44 pm, respondent continued to urge Pence to take unilateral action to adjourn the Joint Session and so delay the counting of electoral votes.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 76 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that he urged Pence to unilaterally reject electoral votes.

Respondent ADMITS that he urged Pence to accede to requests from more than a hundred state legislators to delay the electoral count proceedings for a brief period in order to allow the state legislatures in the contested states time to assess the impact, if any, that acknowledged illegality and fraud had on the results of the election.

Respondent DENIES that he conceded such a brief delay was contrary to historical practice, as Congress itself had provided for a multi-month delay following the contested election of 1876.

Respondent DENIES that he conceded that a delay would violate several provisions of statutory law, although he ADMITS that he acknowledged that was Mr. Jacob's position. Section 16 of the Electoral Count Act, 3 U.S.C. § 16, expressly distinguishes between the Joint Session of Congress being "dissolved" and "recess[ed]."

The former is prohibited by the Act "until the count of electoral votes shall be completed and the result declared," and Respondent never advised that the Joint Session should be "dissolved." A "recess" is likewise prohibited "unless a question shall have arisen in regard to counting any such votes," which was precisely the situation that presented itself, serious questions having been raised regarding the counting of electoral votes from several states. Moreover, even if the Electoral Count Act prohibited the Vice President from acceding to requests from more than a hundred state legislators for a brief delay in the proceedings to allow time for further investigation of the impact that illegality and fraud had on the election results, Respondent expressly noted during the discussions with Mr. Jacob on January 5, 2021, that the Act itself would therefore be unconstitutional.

Respondent DENIES that he conceded that his recommendation for a brief delay "would likely be unanimously rejected by the Supreme Court." In fact, he expressly wrote to Mr. Jacob that such an action "had a fair chance of being approved (or at least not enjoined) by the Courts."

Respondent ADMITS that the language quoted in Paragraph 76 from Mr. Jacob's email of approximately 12:14 pm EST is contained in that email, but DENIES that he agreed with Mr. Jacob's assessment.

77. By proposing to Pence that he had the legal authority to and should act unilaterally to resolve purported disputes regarding electoral votes on January 6, 2021, or that he had the legal authority unilaterally to delay certification of the votes, respondent advanced a radical and incorrect theory of constitutional law and election law, based on misinterpreted historical sources, misinterpreted law review articles, and law review articles which he knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, were themselves fundamentally flawed, and on the false premise that the seven states at issue had transmitted alternate slates of electors, such that no reasonable attorney with expertise in constitutional law or election law would conclude that Pence was legally authorized to take the actions that respondent proposed. Respondent advanced this theory and proposed that Pence take these actions where the outcome of a presidential election was at stake, courts were unlikely to be in a position to intervene, and the intended result of the proposed actions, the reversal of the outcome of the 2020 presidential election, risked significant foreseeable harm. By advancing this theory and proposing that Pence take these actions under the circumstances set forth above, respondent committed acts of moral turpitude, dishonesty, and corruption in willful violation of Business and Professions Code section 6106.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 77 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent DENIES that he "propos[ed] to Pence that he had the legal authority to and should act unilaterally to resolve purported disputes regarding electoral votes on January 6, 2021, he urged Pence to unilaterally reject electoral votes." Rather, he expressly stated to Pence during the Oval Office meeting on January 4, 2021 that whether he had such authority was an "open question," but that even if he had such authority, it would be foolish to exercise it absent certification of alternate electors by the legislatures of the states. That account of the discussion was confirmed in a New York Times article by a "person close to Mr. Pence," who said that "Mr. Eastman acknowledged that the Vice President most likely did not have that power." Michael S. Schmidt and Maggie Haberman, The Lawyer Behind the Memo on How Trump Court Stay in Office, New York Times (Oct. 2, 2021). 45

Respondent DENIES that his advice to accede to requests from over a hundred state legislators for a brief delay was either "radical" or "incorrect," or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing at the time that it was "radical" or incorrect." On the contrary, Congress itself had authorized a multi-month delay in the elector count proceedings following the disputed election of 1876. Respondent DENIES that he "misinterpreted historical sources" or "law review articles. Respondent DENIES that he knew, or was grossly negligent in not knowing, that the law review were "fundamentally flawed." Respondent DENIES that his assertion that alternative slates of electors had been submitted from seven states was a "false premise," given that they were identically situated to the Senator Kennedy electors in Hawaii in 1960 following initial certification of that election for Vice President Nixon. Respondent DENIES that "no reasonable attorney with expertise in constitutional law or election law would conclude that Pence was legally authorized to" accede to requests from numerous state legislators for a brief delay in the electoral count proceedings. Several constitutional scholars have advocated for or at least acknowledged the tenability of position that the Vice President has the preeminent authority to make judgements about the legality of disputed electoral votes, as noted in Respondent's response to Paragraph 6 above. Moreover, Vice President Pence's own General Counsel, Greg Jacob, had acknowledged in a memo to the Vice President dated December 8, 2020, that "[s]ome scholars argue that under the text of the Twelfth Amendment, it is the sole responsibility of the Vice President to count electoral votes, and that it is accordingly also the Vice President's sole responsibility to determine whether or not disputed electoral votes should be counted," and that the Electoral Count Act, which relegates the Vice President to a merely ministerial role, is therefore unconstitutional. Information Memorandum, Gregory Jacob to Vice President Pence (Dec. 8, 2020). 46 Mr. Jacob further noted that, "[b]ecause there are only a few instances of historical practice under the Electoral Count Act, however, the question of its constitutionality remains muddy, and scholars continue to this day to debate the constitutionally appropriate role of the Vice President in resolving objections to electoral votes." Id. Respondent DENIES that advancing a legal position on behalf of his client, where the legal issues remain "muddy" and are the subject of continuing scholarly debate, is a valid ground for discipline. Indeed, Under California's "judgment immunity rule," an attorney is immune from liability for legal advice if the law was unsettled at the time attorney gave the professional advice and his advice was based on the exercise of informed judgment. *Mutuelles Unies v. Respondent ADMITS that, given what Vice President Pence himself acknowledged were "significant allegations of voting irregularities and numerous instances of officials setting aside state election law"—that is, acting unconstitutionally—and given the serious allegations of illegality and fraud that had been identified by more than a hundred state legislatures and that, in their view, called into question the validity of the existing election certifications, the "outcome of a presidential election was at stake." Respondent DENIES that the "intended result" of his advice to delay the proceedings was the "reversal of the outcome of the 2020 presidential election." On the contrary, as outlined in his six-page memo, the "delay" scenario sought to provide additional time for investigation, and that, "If, after investigation, proven fraud and illegality is insufficient to alter the results of the election, the original slate of electors would remain valid. BIDEN WINS." (emphasis in original)). Respondent ADMITS that that "courts were unlikely to be in a position to intervene" because, as Harvard Law Professor Lawrence Tribe has previously argued, questions arising out of the electoral count process are likely nonjusticiable political questions. Respondent DENIES that a delay to assess the impact of acknowledged illegality and fraud in the election, rather than the illegality and fraud itself, "risked significant foreseeable harm."

Respondent DENIES that highlighting illegality and fraud in the conduct of an election and proposing to the government official with primary responsibility over the electoral counting process to merely accede to requests from more than a hundred state legislators to "delay" the proceedings for further investigation to determine whether the acknowledged illegality and fraud in the conduct of the election altered the results of the election constitutes an act involving moral turpitude, dishonesty, and corruption in violation of Business and Professions Code section 6106, willful or otherwise. On the contrary, the right to petition the government for redress of grievances is explicitly protected by the First Amendment.

78. A violation of section 6106 may result from intentional conduct or grossly negligent conduct. Respondent is charged with committing intentional acts of moral turpitude, dishonesty, or corruption. However, should the evidence at trial demonstrate that respondent committed the acts as a result of gross negligence, respondent must still be found culpable of violating section 6106 because acts of moral turpitude, dishonesty, or corruption through gross negligence are a lesser included offense of intentional acts of moral turpitude, dishonesty, or corruption.

Respondent DENIES that his recommendation to Vice President Pence—a petition to the responsible official in Government for redress of grievances that is protected by the First Amendment—was conduct that was contrary to law or historical or judicial precedent, or that he knew of was grossly negligent in not knowing, that such conduct was contrary to law or historical or judicial precedent.

80. On or about January 6, 2021, respondent spoke to a crowd of tens of thousands of people who attended a rally, promoted as a "Save America" march, at the Ellipse of the National Mall in Washington, D.C. During his speech, respondent stated to the crowd that fraud had occurred in the November 3, 2020, presidential election, including a claim that "dead people had voted" and that Dominion electronic voting machines had fraudulently manipulated the election results. Respondent made these statements with the intent to convince the listener that the outcome of the presidential election had been affected by fraud. Respondent further stated, "[A]II we are demanding of Vice President Pence is this afternoon at 1:00 he let the legislators of the state look into this so we get to the bottom of it . . ." Respondent made these statements with the intent to encourage the crowd of protestors to doubt the results of the election and to believe that Pence had the legal authority to delay the counting of electoral votes.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 80 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent ADMITS that he spoke to the "Save America" rally at the Ellipse of the National Mall in Washington, D.C., on January 6, 2021. He ADMITS that there were at least "tens of thousands of people" in attendance, and has estimated, based on aerial photographs of crowds at similar events on the National Mall, that the crowd was likely somewhere between 250,000 and 500,000 people. Respondent ADMITS that he made the statements quoted and attributed to him in Paragraph 80 of the NDC. Respondent DENIES that the crowd at the rally were "protestors" rather than rally attendees. Respondent DENIES that his intent was to "encourage the crowd of protestors to doubt the results of the election" rather than to highlight the acknowledged illegality and serious allegations of fraud in the conduct of the election. Respondent DENIES that his intent was to encourage the crowd to believe anything about the Vice President's authority under the Twelfth Amendment; he merely stated that "we"—which is to say, Respondent, the President, and more than a hundred state legislators—had asked the Vice President to delay the counting of electoral votes for a brief period of time to allow state legislatures the opportunity to assess whether acknowledged illegality and fraud in the conduct of the election had affected the election results.

81. By telling the crowd of protestors, from a position of authority as a professor and purported "preeminent constitutional scholar," that fraud had occurred in the election, that dead people had voted, that electronic voting machines had been used to fraudulently alter the election results, that Pence had authority to delay the counting of votes, and that Pence did not deserve to be in office if he did not delay the counting of votes, respondent made false and misleading statements that contributed to provoking the crowd to assault and breach the Capitol in an effort to intimidate Pence and prevent the electoral count from proceeding, when such harm was foreseeable, and thereby committed an act of moral turpitude, dishonesty, and corruption in willful violation of Business and Professions Code section 6106.

Respondent objects to the allegations in Paragraph 81 of the NDC on the grounds that they are conclusory, compound, ambiguous, vague, imprecise, overbroad, and intertwined with legal conclusions/argument. Notwithstanding these objections, Respondent ADMITS that at the time of his speech he was a professor. Respondent ADMITS that Rudy Giuliani introduced him as "one of the preeminent constitutional scholars in the United States." Respondent ADMITS that fraud and illegality had occurred in the election, that votes had been cast on behalf of dead people, and that he made those truthful statements to the crowd of people at the rally. Respondent ADMITS that he had been advised by statistical and forensic experts that voting machines had suspense folders into which ballots could be pre-loaded and then fraudulently including in vote tallies, as was proved to have actually happened in the New York mayoral race in June 2021. ADMITS that those same experts conveyed to him on the early evening of January 5, 2021, that if such a fraud were to occur in the Georgia run-off election for U.S. Senate, a dramatic increase in the number of total votes reported would occur late in the counting process, and that the counting process itself would be shut down for a period of time. Respondent ADMITS that just such an increase in total votes was reported late in the evening on January 5, 2021, following the close of polls in Georgia, and that just such a shut-down occurred. Respondent ADMITS that he conveyed that expert analysis to the crowd assembled at the Ellipse on the morning of January 6, 2021. Respondent DENIES that he made any statement to the crowd about Vice President Pence's authority. Respondent DENIES that he told the assembled crowd that "Pence did not deserve to be in office if he did not delay the counting of votes." Rather, as the transcript of his remarks demonstrates, he stated that "anybody that is not willing to stand up to" get to the bottom of whether acknowledged illegality and fraud in the conduct of the election had affected the election results "does not deserve to be in the office." "Anybody" would include not just Vice President Pence, but other members of Congress as well as the members of the several state legislatures who were being asked to investigate the acknowledged illegality and fraud and to assess whether that affected the election results.

Respondent DENIES that his statements were false and misleading, or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing at the time that they were false and Respondent DENIES that his statements provoked or "contributed to misleading. provoking the crowd to assault and breach the Capitol in an effort to intimidate Pence and prevent the electoral count from proceeding." On the contrary, Respondent made no statement provoking or inciting the crowd to violence of any kind, much less inciting it to "imminent" violence as the Supreme Court has held to be required for speech to be unprotected under the First Amendment. See, e.g., Brandenburg v. Ohio, 395 U.S. 444 (1969). The bar investigators have offered no evidence to support the allegation that attendees at the Ellipse rally who heard Respondent's short speech at about 10:45 a.m. were among those who "assault[ed] and breach[ed] the Capitol" more than three hours later. Respondent is unaware of any such evidence, and to his knowledge, no allegation to that effect was made in the criminal indictments brought against any of the more than 900 individuals who were charged with crimes arising out of the breach of the Capitol. Respondent DENIES that the assault and breach of the Capitol was a foreseeable response to his brief speech, particularly since the President himself, who spoke after Respondent, expressly acknowledged that "everyone here will soon be marching over to the Capitol building to peacefully and patriotically make your voices heard," a quintessential invocation of the Freedom of Speech and the right to Petition the Government for Redress of Grievances protected by the First Amendment. Respondent DENIES that his brief speech, protected by the First Amendment, was "an act of moral turpitude, dishonesty, and corruption in willful violation of Business and Professions Code section 6106."

82. A violation of section 6106 may result from intentional conduct or grossly negligent conduct. Respondent is charged with committing intentional acts of moral turpitude, dishonesty, or corruption. However, should the evidence at trial demonstrate that respondent committed the acts as a result of gross negligence, respondent must still be found culpable of violating section 6106 because acts of moral turpitude, dishonesty, or corruption through gross negligence are a lesser included offense of intentional acts of moral turpitude, dishonesty, or corruption.

Respondent DENIES that his brief speech—a speech protected by the First Amendment—was false and misleading or otherwise constituted "acts of moral turpitude, dishonesty, or corruption," or that he knew or was grossly negligent in not knowing that the speech was false and misleading or otherwise constituted "acts of moral turpitude, dishonesty, or corruption."

AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSES

FIRST AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Failure to State Sufficient Facts)

The NDC, and each of its purported counts, fails to state, by clear and convincing evidence, that there are sufficient facts to provide a basis for discipline.

SECOND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Duplicative Charges)

The NDC contains inappropriate, unnecessary, and immaterial duplicative charges. Bates v. State Bar (1990) 51 Cal.3d 1056, 1060; In the Matter of Lilley (Rev. Dept. 1991) 1 Cal. State Bar Ct.Rptr. 476, 585.

THIRD AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Lack of Materiality)

The facts on which some or all of the Notice of Disciplinary Charges are based allege immaterial or irrelevant omissions or statements.

FOURTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(No Willful Misconduct)

The facts on which some or all of the counts in the NDC are based, to the extent Respondent's assertions were incorrect at all, constitute mistake, inadvertence, neglect, or error, and do not rise to the level of willful misconduct nor gross negligence.

FIFTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(No Prior Discipline)

Prior to the conduct alleged in the NDC, Respondent practiced law for more than 20 years with no record of discipline. If and to the extent Respondent receives discipline for the conduct alleged in the NDC, mitigation credit should be applied under Rule 1.6(a) of the State Bar Rules of Procedure.

SIXTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Good Character)

Respondent exhibits exemplary good character, as will be attested to in the course of this proceeding by a wide range of references in the legal and general communities. If and to the extent Respondent is disciplined for the conduct alleged in the NDC, mitigation credit should be applied under Rule 1.6(f) of the State Bar Rules of Procedure.

- 103 -

SEVENTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Remoteness in Time/Subsequent Rehabilitation)

In the two years that have elapsed since the time of the conduct alleged in the NDC, Respondent has practiced law without incident. If and to the extent Respondent is disciplined for the conduct alleged in the NDC, mitigation credit should be applied under Rule 1.6(h) of the State Bar Rules of Procedure.

EIGHTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Violation of U.S. and California Constitutions' Freedoms of Speech, Association, and Political Affiliation)

The California Bar lacks jurisdiction over the conduct of the Respondent referred to in the Charges because the First Amendment and its California counterpart provide absolute protection for political speech and legal opinion given in good faith on a matter of public importance. Respondent also cannot be penalized for his political affiliations, associations, or speech. See, e.g., Gentile v. State Bar of Nevada, 501 U.S. 1030, 1054 (1991) (Kennedy, J., joined by Justices Marshall, Blackmun, and Stevens) ("disciplinary rules governing the legal profession cannot punish activity protected by the First Amendment, and [the] First Amendment protection survives even when the attorney violates a disciplinary rule he swore to obey when admitted to the practice of law."); In re Kaiser, 759 P.2d 392,397 (Wash. S.Ct. 1988) ("Where political speech is at issue, disciplinary rules are subject to exacting scrutiny under the First Amendment") (citing In re Primus, 436 U.S. 412 (1978); NAACP v. Button, 371 U.S. 415, 438 (1963)). As was the case in Gentile, "this case involves punishment of pure speech in the political forum. Petitioner engaged not in solicitation of clients or advertising for his practice, as in our precedents from which some of our colleagues would discern a standard of diminished First Amendment protection. His words were directed at public officials and their conduct in office." Gentile, 501 U.S. at 1034. Like Nevada in Gentile, California here "seeks to punish the dissemination of information relating to alleged governmental misconduct, which only last Term we described as 'speech which has traditionally been recognized as lying at the core of the First Amendment." Id. at 1034-35 (quoting Butterworth v. Smith, 494 U.S. 624, 632 (1990)). The Notice of Disciplinary Charges is therefore a violation of Respondent's Freedom of Speech protected by the First Amendment (as made applicable to the States via the Fourteenth Amendment).

NINTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Violation of U.S. Constitution, Right to Petition Government for Redress of Grievances)

The First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution guarantees the right to petition the government for redress of grievances. As the Ninth Circuit has recognized, the "right to petition 'protects the right of individuals to appeal to courts and other forums established by the government for resolution of legal disputes" and, "[m]ore generally, it 'allows citizens to express their ideas, hopes, and concerns to their government and their elected representatives." Rodriguez v. Newsom, 974 F.3d 998, 1010 (9th Cir. 2020) (quoting Borough of Duryea, Pa. v. Guarnieri, 564 U.S. 379, 387-88 (2011). Respondents actions in litigating election disputes on behalf of his client, in speaking about illegality and fraud in the conduct of the election, and in petitioning Vice President Pence to accede to requests from more than a hundred state legislators for a brief delay in the elector vote counting process to assess the impact of such illegality and fraud on the election results, fall squarely within the right to petition protected by the First Amendment.

TENTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Violation of U.S. Constitution, Due Process)

Due process rights are violated if an attorney's presentation of a defense would require that attorney to disclose confidential information subject to attorney-client privilege. Greenwald & Hoffman, LLP (App. 4 Dist. 2011) 127 Cal.Rptr.3d 317, 196 Cal.App.4th 891, rehearing denied.

ELEVENTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Attorney-Client Privileges)

Respondent is duty bound to uphold and respect the attorney-client privileges that apply to communications arising out of the matters asserted in the NDC. Those privileges belong to the client(s) and cannot be waived by Respondent. Respondent cannot be forced to testify in violation of attorney-client privilege. Neither should the Bar be able to use any testimony from others that it may have obtained in violation of the attorney-client privilege. The NDC places Respondent in an impossible situation – on the one hand being bound to uphold the various privileges that apply to his communication with others, but being forced to defend against allegations regarding the Additionally, receiving testimony against Respondent into evidence in this same conduct. proceeding that was given in violation of any attorney-client privilege would violate due process because Respondent, observing the privilege, cannot counter the testimony given against him without violating the privilege, creating a procedural Catch-22 of which ODC and the California Bar generally have now been put on notice. See, e.g., Solin v. O'Melveny & Meyers (2001) 89 Cal.App.4th 451, McDermott, Will & Emery v. Superior Court (2000) 83 Cal.App.4th 378, and Kracht v. Perrin, Gartland & Doyle (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1019 (All three cases stand for the proposition that an action that rests mainly on the credibility of communications between an attorney and client cannot stand where the attorney is duty bound to enforce the privilege). "We conclude that because this lawsuit 'is incapable of complete resolution without breaching the attorney-client privilege, the suit may not proceed." Solin, supra, 89 Cal. App.4th at 467.

TWELTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Sixth Amendment Confrontation Clause)

Receiving the testimony against Respondent into evidence in this proceeding that violates the attorney-client privilege would violate the Confrontation Clause (U.S. Const. amend. VI) because Respondent, observing one or more of the applicable privileges, cannot counter and thus confront the testimony given against him without violating the privilege, creating a second procedural Catch-22.

THIRTEENTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Violation of U.S. Constitution, Equal Protection)

The Office of Disciplinary Counsel wields its disciplinary authority here in a politically biased manner, prosecuting a prominent Republican lawyer and supporter of former President Trump with excessive and improper zeal, while turning a blind eye to the blatant falsehoods that were perpetrated by Democrat members of the California Bar, such as Adam Schiff (SBN 122595, Inactive) and Eric Swalwell (SBN 244361, Active),⁴⁷ in the wake of the 2016 election. This selective prosecution/disparate treatment of alleged violations of the Rules of Professional Conduct violates the Equal Protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. See, e.g., Adamson v. City & Cnty. San Francisco, No. 16-CV-04370-YGR, 2018 WL 1456761, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 23, 2018) ("A claim of selective prosecution is sufficiently alleged where the plaintiff sets forth facts to establish that the prosecutor decided to enforce the law "on the basis of an impermissible ground such as ... exercise of ... constitutional rights."); see also Gayer v. State Bar of California, No. C 93-2085 BAC, 1994 WL 163920, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 14, 1994), aff d₂ 73 F.3d 368 (9th Cir. 1995) (recognizing a selective prosecution claim in the context of bar discipline proceeding).

The equal protection violation is exacerbated by the Bar's focus on Respondents' speech and the vagueness of the regulations it seeks to enforce against Respondent. "The prohibition against vague regulations of speech is based in part on the need to eliminate the impermissible risk of discriminatory enforcement, Kolender v. Lawson, 461 U.S. 352, 357–358, 361 (1983); Smith v. The question is not whether discriminatory enforcement occurred here, and we assume it did not, but whether the Rule is so imprecise that discriminatory enforcement is a real possibility." Gentile v. State Bar of Nevada, 501 U.S. 1030, 1051 (1991).

FOURTEENTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Lack of Due Process - Fair Notice)

Respondent lacks fair notice that the conduct alleged in the Charges constituted a violation of the California Bar Rules. Until the spate of complaints filed against lawyers involved in the 2020 election challenges, there was no case like these in the annals of ethical decisions in California or in any State in the Nation. No licensed lawyer in December 2020 to January 2021 could possibly have rationally expected that the local ethics rules would be deemed to be violated for bringing challenges to election irregularities of the sort that are commonplace in the wake of contested elections. As such, the Charges violate the Due Process Clause's requirement of fair notice.

FIFTEENTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Abatement Pursuant to SB 5.50(B)

SB Rule of Procedure 5.50 permits consideration of any relevant factor in determining whether to grant a motion for abatement, including:

- the extent to which issues in a related proceeding are the same or substantially the same as those in the State Bar Court proceeding;
- the delay of the State Bar proceeding necessary by awaiting trial or appeal in a related proceeding;
- the potential expedition of the State Bar proceeding by awaiting disposition in a related proceeding;

- the extent to which evidence may be adduced in a related proceeding that would aid determination of the State Bar Court proceeding;
- the extent to which evidence would become unavailable in the State Bar Court proceeding because of delay resulting from abatement;
- the extent to which parties, witnesses or documents are currently unavailable to participate in the State Bar Court proceeding for reasons beyond the parties' control;
- the extent to which a party or witness may be prejudiced in a related proceeding by delaying or proceeding with further action;
- the extent to which a Client Security Fund claim would be unnecessarily delayed.

SB Rule 5.50(B)

A fundamental principle of both California and federal law is the right against selfincrimination. That right is recognized in the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution, Article 1 Section 15 of the California Constitution, and Evidence Code section 940, which provides that "[t]o the extent that such privilege exists under the Constitution of the United States or the State of California, a person has a privilege to refuse to disclose any matter that may tend to incriminate him." The fact that Respondent is likely to be placed in a position in which he must choose whether to assert or waive their Fifth Amendment rights presents a profoundly significant constitutional issue.

The rule is clear in California that "[a] party asserting the Fifth Amendment privilege should suffer no penalty for his silence." (Pacers, Inc. v. Sup. Ct., 162 Cal.App.3d 686, 689 (1984).) "In this context 'penalty' is not restricted to fine or imprisonment," but includes "the imposition of any sanction which makes assertion of the Fifth Amendment privilege 'costly." Id. (Citation omitted). Indeed, this principle is explicitly codified in California at Evidence Code § 913, which provides that upon the assertion of a privilege "neither the presiding officer nor counsel may comment thereon, no presumption shall arise because of the exercise of the privilege, and the trier of fact may not draw any inference therefrom."

To the extent Respondent is under threat of criminal prosecution, implicating his Fifth Amendment rights, abatement of the disciplinary proceeding is arguably necessary to protect his rights and is within the Bar Court's discretion to order.

In view of the importance of the privilege against self-incrimination, courts in civil cases have the inherent authority and discretion to stay a pending civil action, or to stay discovery, until such time as the need to invoke the privilege is eliminated. (Fuller v. Superior Court, 87 Cal.App.4th 299, 307 (2001) ["[o]ne accommodation is to stay the civil proceeding until disposition of the related criminal prosecution].") It is, of course, well-settled that "[j]udges also have broad discretion in controlling the course of discovery and in making the various decisions necessitated by discovery proceedings." (Obregon v. Sup. Ct. (1998) 67 Cal.App.4th 424, 431.) The Court's wide discretion in controlling discovery extends to ordering a partial or complete stay of discovery under circumstances such as those present here, where a civil action coexists with an actual or potential criminal action based on related facts. (Pacers, Inc., supra, 162 Cal.App.3d at 690):

Where, as here, a defendant's silence is constitutionally guaranteed, the court should weigh the parties' competing interests with a view toward accommodating the interests of both parties, if possible. An order staying discovery until expiration of the criminal statute of limitations would allow real parties to prepare their lawsuit while alleviating petitioners' difficult choice between defending either the civil or criminal case.

SIXTEENTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Violation of 5th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution)

The 5th Amendment affords Respondent the right not to testify against himself. The NDC places Respondent is at risk that his testimony in this proceeding will be used against him in other proceedings; that risk is prohibited by the 5th Amendment.
